AMERICAN WOMAN BEATEN TO DEATH BY A 'BLUEBEARD'

LONDON, July 14.—The victim of the London cellar mystery, which to-day led to the start of a world-wide search for Dr. Hawley Crippen, an American dentist, met her death after a terrible struggle, in which her head was battered till the skull resembled a broken eggshell, according to statements made this afternoon by the police.

DENTIST AND WOMAN ARE BOTH HUNTED.

The identity of the victim is still doubted by some, but it is almost certain, say the authorities that she was Mrs. Crippen, formerly Belle Elmoore, the beautiful singer and actress, whose death was announced but three a month after she had disappeared. The fatal struggle occurred in a bare room.

The attention of the police is now turned to the examination of letters found in the house at No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent, North London, where the body was found and where Dr. Crippen lived till he fled after the police visited him on July 8.

Not only is the dentist being hunted, but also a pretty stenographer, Ethel Leneve. The police received word into-day that the girl had been located in Edinburgh.

Search Is World Wide.

The police of every important city of the world to-day took up the chase for the dentist, who disappeared after the first visit of the police to his house on June 9, three months or more after the notice of his wife's death abroad has published.

The belief is now held that Crippen's relations with women will reveal a startling career as a Bluebeard, according to the authorities. Ethel Leneve is thought to be with him.

Here is the description of the missing man:

"Hawley Harvey Crippen, alias Peter Crippen and Francisi Crippen, an American doctor, aged fifty, five feet three inches, complexion fresh, hair light brown, inclined to be sandy and scanty bald on top; long moustache; mark on the bridge of nose; wears false teeth and gold rimmed spectacles; speaks with slight American accent; wears hat on back of head; is plausible and outspoken."

Where Is the Dentist?

Sir Melville MacNaughten, the chief of Scotland Yard's criminal investigation department, who is directing the big force of detectives handling the case, to-day made another daylight examination of the premises, especially the cellar where the bones were found. The cellar was photographed by daylight last night after the tragedy had been discovered. The bones, which to-day were given to experts for minute examination, are apparently those of a woman of about twenty-seven. Belle Elmoore was thirty-five. Barring a mistake, here is one of the most baffling plumes of the case. If Belle Elmore were not the victim, who was? Where is Crippen? And where is his wife?

Every note leading from London to-day is under close guard, and all slips that have sailed for America in the last few days have been communicated with. If possible by wireless, the police taking the same precautions as they did in the hunt for Porter Charlton, the young American now under arrest in New Jersey, who killed his wife, Mary Scott Costin Charlton.

Was a Brooklyn Girl.

Belle Elmore's maiden name was Kunigunde Makomaski. She was born in Brooklyn and took the name of Belle Elmore after going on the stage, where she gained a reputation as a soprano singer. Several years ago she married Dr. Crippen in Philadelphia, in accordance with a provision of her grandfather's will, who took the title of Baron Makomaski. The couple then came to London, where the woman continued her stage career and acted as an official of the Music Hall Artists' Guild.

They went to live at No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent. Mrs. Crippen regularly attended to her duties with the guild until last February, when she suddenly disappeared.

CONVICT MAYOR IS DEFIANT

LAWRENCE, July 14.—Answering the call of Thomas M. Jordan, president of the Board of Aldermen, whom the law designates to act as Mayor in the event of the inability of the Chief Executive to perform his duties, both branches of the city government went into special session at 2 o'clock to-day, and asked the opinion of the City Solicitor upon the extraordinary condition confronting the city as a result of the imprisonment of Mayor William F. White, convicted of conspiracy to bribe.

Mayor White, ex-Alderman Matthew Burns and two other political friends of the Mayor, Samuel Kress and George B. Smart, sentenced yesterday by Judge Sisk to terms of imprisonment of from three years in the case of the Mayor to one and one-half years in the case of Smart, called counsel to Lawrence jail to-day in order to hurry the preparation of a bill of exceptions before the Supreme Court.

First Mayor Jailed in State.

Mayor White's imprisonment is the first instance in the history of Massachusetts where the Mayor of a city has been in prison for any time. Never before last night have the prison doors of a Massachusetts jail closed upon the Mayor of a municipality until they clanked behind Mayor White. Only a few States in the Union afford a similar instance, the last being in the case of Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco, now under sentence for conspiracy and bribery.

City Solicitor Murphy was asked particularly this afternoon by members of the city government to define the exact status of William P. White and the status and powers that the Board of Aldermen by the president of the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor White, from Cell 13 in the grim, gray county jail, declares that he is still the Mayor of Lawrence, and that he is not at all disqualified from holding public office, because he has not been convicted of bribery. He has been convicted, and unjustly, so he declares, of conspiracy to bribe.

Under Three Years' Sentence.

Mayor White is under sentence for three years for conspiracy to bribe and declares that this offence does not come under the law disqualifying him from office, and that accordingly he is still the Mayor. The Mayor's secretary, Matthew F. Ryan, has been calling upon the Mayor at the jail, declared that he would bring to the Mayor for signature all papers requiring the Mayor's signature, and that in effect the head of the government of Lawrence would be removed from the City Hall to the county jail. It is not so long as the Mayor should be held a prisoner and until the end of the present year, it is declared.

The jail authorities, however, to-day informed Secretary Ripon that Mayor White is a prisoner in the eyes of the law and would be accorded no privileges. These privileges include the reception of visitors once a week and the receiving of letters once a week also. The rules are rigid in regard to the transaction of business, providing that no business whatever shall be transacted by a prisoner.

The ordinances of the city provide that when the Mayor is unable to perform the duties of his office the city government shall elect a Mayor.

Is Mayor White unable to perform the duties of his office?

Will Fight for Office.

That is the important question which the city solicitor is called upon to decide. Mayor White and his secretary will vigorously combat any effort made to deprive him of his office upon the grounds of "inability." The Mayor from his cell to-day declared that he would not only continue to give orders and sign documents as Mayor, but would be a candidate for Mayor again in the Fall, even if compelled to conduct his campaign from his prison cell.

Secretary Ripon early to-day took charge of the Mayor's office, but the work soon supplanted by President Jordan of the Board of Aldermen, and Ripon was ousted at once by City Hall officials as the Acting Mayor. Ripon is said to be considering the advisability of bringing mandamus proceedings to compel the Mayor from his cell to-day to surrender to the Mayor's office and take them to the imprisoned chief executive for signature, with the consent of President Jordan to perform all the duties of Mayor, promises to lead to the abrupt dismissal of Secretary Ripon by Acting Mayor Jordan from the city's service.

White Is a Republican.

Political conditions promise to undergo a radical change in Lawrence if White is succeeded by President Jordan as acting Mayor or by a new Mayor. Mayor White is a Republican, and the city government is Democratic. In the event of the election of a new Mayor a strong Democratic majority in the city government will elect a Mayor of their own party. Dr. John T. Cahill, Democratic candidate for Mayor last year, may be the choice of the city government and his election would mean the reappointment of Democratic heads of department whose official heads Mayor White has been holding in the balance for months.

District Attorney Peters, who convicted the Mayor and his confederates, caused a sensation to-day when he said:

"I am going to get every briber in Essex County. The conviction of Mayor White and other Lawrence men is only a start. There are more headed for prison and they'll be there before Autumn."

200 FLEE IN PANIC AT AMESBURY

AMESBURY, July 14.—In an explosion of alcohol in the fur department of the Merrimac hat factory to-day four men were badly burned. The blazing fluid was thrown over the heads and arms of the men and into all parts of the room. The 200 employes, thinking the boiler had exploded, rushed from the building. Forty women, employed as trimmers in a room near the fur department, were thrown into a panic ,many of them climbing out o fthe windows and screaming for help.

The four men burned were Fred White of Newburyport, Fred Cassidy of Fall River and Herbert Low and James Dunn of Amesbury. They were pouring gasoline from a large tank into a smaller receptacle. It is believed that the fumes from the liquid were exploded coming in contact with a small gas blaze under one of the pressing machines.

The can exploded with a roar, and the four men were taken to the home of Arthur Cassour men were knocked from their feet, well where their injuries were dressed by Dr. Peter Mullin. They were later removed to their homes.

ger of a bad fire, but other employes rushed into the room dragging hose and fire extinguishers. They quickly had the flames under control, although about $200 worth of furs were destroyed.

An alarm of fire was sounded for the Amesbury department, located two miles away, but on the way out by the time the local firemen reached the place. The four

NICARAGUA'S NAVY IS TAKEN BY ESTRADA

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—The United States cruiser Prairie, Captain Wilhelmson commanding, reached here from Nicaraguan waters early to-day, bringing news that Estrada had captured the Madrix gunboat Venus during an engagement along the Atlantic coast between Pearl Lagoon and Bluefields.

The wireless operator of the Prairie picked up a dispatch saying that the Venus had been captured. There were no details, but it is presumed here that the Venus was taken during an engagement between American pinnaces and Estrada soldiers of Pearl Lagoon on one side and the Venus and the eminent San Jacinto of the Madrix government on the other.

This is the first news of the fate of the Venus that has been received here. The vessel sailed from here under a Norwegian flag three months ago and turned up at Greytown, Nicaragua, under the Madrix flag. Captain Wilhelmson declares that the United States must step in and end the hostilities in Nicaragua. "Bluefields," he says, "is almost an American city and the protection of American interests in that place is only right and proper no matter who it affects. Unless intervention comes the struggle will go on indefinitely, for Madrix cannot take the East coast and Estrada cannot take the West."

BROKERS HELD IN $20,000 ON THEFT CHARGE

On indictments charging them with the larceny of nearly half a million dollars, with keeping a bucket shop and with conspiracy to swindle persons generally unknown, Arthur B. Sedergust, Harry F. Curtis and John F. darcy of the brokerage firm of Sedergust, Barry & Company, were arraigned in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court to-day before Judge Charles DeCourcy and each pleaded not guilty. They were each held in the old bail of $20,000.

The last two indictments, charging them with maintaining a bucket shop and with conspiracy, be held are made public for the first time to-day. The men were arrested last October and arraigned on the indictment, but did not plead to it at that time.

Judge DeCourcy allowed the defendants ten days to file special motions.

Dr. Eustace Bigelow and Perley L. Freeman, New York brokers, are also named as defendants. Their counsel have been notified and they will soon be made to contribute them and bring them to Boston to plead to the indictments. These New Yorkers are alleged to have been associated with the Boston defendants.

Charles H. Rollins, former member of the Governor's Council, who was also indicted on the same charges, will be brought into court in a few days to plead. He is out of town at present. Rollins appeared in court last Fall with the three defendants, who appeared to-day. It is said that he was associated with the firm.

Efforts to bring all the six defendants to trial in the Fall will be made by District Attorney Pelletier. The case promises to be hard fought.

GOVERNMENT HALTS HIGHER RATE ON MILK

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Acting on the complaint filed by the Boston Dairy Company, D. Whiting & Sons, H. P. Hood & Sons and other dairy interests in Massachusetts, the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day ordered a suspension of the tariff of the Boston & Maine Railroad and other carriers announcing increased rates on milk from various New England points to Boston, pending investigation of the reasonableness of the rates.

This action also affects the Maine Central and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain. The decision followed a hearing by the commission.

The petitioners set forth that in making expenditures for feedstuffs, on plants, creameries, etc., they relied on the continuance of the old carload rates. These rates, they say, have resulted in giving the farmers better prices and the consumers cheaper milk. It is said that the new rates, filed June 28, average about 50 per cent. higher than the old ones.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, July 14.—Another deluge of fans sailed the ramparts of the diamond area because there was a double-header for the Sox championship and the Red was the favorite over the White stockinged fellows.

It was a fine chance for the Speed Boys to redeem themselves for being lanced in that couple of contests with the Naps which threw so much gloom in the camp of the local followers, and every loyal supporter was willing to bet his last nickel that such a tumble would not happen again.

Duffy's warriors evidently had not recovered from the bumps they got from the Yanks, and they were not likely to find any easy going on the local sod, so the Windy City lads were wondering just where they got off visiting these Eastern pennant seekers.

VESUVIUS AGAIN IN ERUPTION

NAPLES, July 14.—Vesuvius is again active and the inhabitants of the surrounding country are in terror. Smoke and occasional flame issued from the crater; the ground is a tremble. A huge land slide has occurred, according to advices received to-day, in the slopes of the volcano, near the spot where a Brazilian millionaire, Silva Yardim, was lost in 1892. Many of the inhabitants to-day are fleeing.

MISS ELKINS SOON TO WED SON OF HITT

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The most notable wedding at the capital promised for the early days of the next social season will be that of Miss Katherine Elkins and William F. Hitt, son of the late Congressman Robert R. Hitt. The Duke of the Abruzzi will be one of the guests, it is said.

This announcement was made by friends of Mr. Hitt at the Chevy Chase Club, and Miss Elkins's family will announce it when she returns from abroad in October.

Miss Elkins and Mr. Hitt were of the bridal table party at the wedding of Miss Mathilde Townsend and Peter Goelet Gerry of New York, and the bouquet of the bride, as well as the piece of cake to be used "under the pillow," revealed that they would be the next to plight their troth.

Miss Elkins is abroad with her mother and Mr. Hitt is traveling with his mother, and both are following practically the same route. Senator Elkins and ex-Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, father and grandfather respectively of the bride-to-be, are pleased with the match.

G. F. WILLIAMS IS IN CONTEMPT AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, July 14.—George Fred Williams of Boston, former Massachusetts Congressman and Democratic candidate for Governor, was adjudged to be in contempt by the Rhode Island Supreme Court in a decision handed down to-day relating to a matter which has been pending for ten years.

When James O. Starkweather of Pawtucket died he left an estate consisting of property valued at between $2,000 and $3,000 to his widow, together with heirs' loans and furniture. His will provided that in case she died or married again the property was to go to Joseph N. Starkweather, son of the couple. When Mrs. Starkweather, the widow, died, her will made a different disposition of the estate than her husband had directed.

Williams was executor to the widow's will and administered the estate according to its provisions. The Supreme Court ordered him in contempt because he did not obey a decree of the appellate court on February 2, 1909, directing him to pay, as executor, $2,865.00 to the son. The Supreme Court now orders him to obey the appellate mandate and to deliver to the son this sum, family heirlooms and furniture which were bequeathed to the widow by her husband. Mr. Williams is given sixty days by the Supreme Court in which to obey.

GRAND TRUNK REFUSES TO MAKE BOSTON TERMINAL

Messrs. Storrow and Ives, Back from Montreal, Report Canadian Railway Is Satisfied.

Here is the report made to-day by James J. Storrow, who with D. O. Ives, chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, went to Montreal to confer with President C. M. Hays of the Grand Trunk railroad, and in the name of the Boston Chamber of Commerce urged that the Grand Trunk build a line not only to Providence, but to this city where, they pointed out, it would have unequalled seaboard terminal facilities.

"We cannot report any definite progress or results," says Mr. Storrow.

Satisfied with Condition.

Mr. Ives and I were the bearers of a letter from Mr. Rothwell, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, to Mr. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk. It is rapidly becoming an immense system of fifteen thousand miles.

Mr. Hays impressed on us the fact that he had no complaint to make, and that Mr. Tuttle had been very fair in offering him facilities through the Boston & Maine.

We reminded Mr. Hays that the Boston & Maine terminals are already taxed to about their capacity, and that it would be wise for the Grand Trunk to study with great care the desirability of establishing its own deep water terminals at Boston Harbor, and we said that we felt sure it was entirely practicable for the Grand Trunk to do so at a moderate expense, and that we could assure him that the State and city authorities, the Chamber of Commerce and all our merchants would undoubtedly add him in such a plan.

Moreover, we felt that the New York, New Haven & Hartford interests and the Boston & Maine would consider seriously some joint track? age arrangement over the White River Junction and the new Grand Trunk terminals, similar to the joint trackage arrangement which his own road under his leadership was now maintaining with the Wabash, permitting the Wabash to operate its own trains from Detroit into Buffalo.

We cannot report any definite progress or results. If such an arrangement ever comes about it will be the result not of a single conference, but of many, extending over a long period of time.

We regard the entrance of the President Hays Says the Present Agreement with Boston & Maine Is Satisfactory.

Grand Trunk into Providence as not inimical to Boston in any way, but merely furnishing another strong reason why the Grand Trunk should operate its own trains into Boston, as well as Providence.

JAMES J. STORROW.

Boston Wants Terminal.

In his report Mr. Ives had this to say:

The remarks of Mr. Hays, as quoted in the newspapers, are in accordance with what he told us, namely, that his relations with the Boston & Maine system were entirely satisfactory and pleasant, and that he had no intention at the present time of asking for any change in them.

We explained to Mr. Hays that the people of Boston would never be satisfied with a temporary arrangement that we wanted to see the Grand Trunk enter Boston, whether on its own rails or over the rails of other roads, under some permanent agreement, which would settle our relations with that great system for all time.

The officers of the Chamber of Commerce feel that this question is such a vital one that it is far beyond any petty consideration of immediate or local importance, but is one that affects the future it is our duty, regardless of all other considerations, to leave no stone unturned to secure some arrangement capable of unlimited expansion, by which Boston shall secure a fair share of the traffic of this vast and for arrangements of a permanent nature.

Railway companies are organized for the purpose of supplying transportation facilities, and here are indications of an enormous movement of freight which will ask for facilities at Canadian ports and, which, unquestionably, will require the help of the United States ports and United States railways. Boston is by far the most available all-the-year-round port for Canada.

Lord Beresford Again Warns England of Peril.

LONDON—Lord Beresford reappeared unrepentant and incorrigible before the Cecil Club, an organization formed years ago for the purpose of stimulating the stalwart feeling among Conservatives of the Salisbury pattern. Lord Charles made a long and interesting speech upon the condition of the fleet and laid stress upon the fact that the nation could never be prepared for war unless it had a war staff, which it did not yet possess.

PARIS—Successful trials have been made at Bordeaux, in great secrecy, with a remarkable new racing monoplane designed by M. Bleriot. It is an improvement on the fast, short-planed, flat-surfaced model with a 100 horsepower motor with which M. Morane flew sixty-six miles an hour at Rheims.

LIFE INSURANCE MAN CHANGES A BALLOON TRIP

LOWELL, Mass., July 14.—Charles J. Glidden has as his guests in the balloon Massachusetts for an ascension from here this afternoon Colonel William M. Bunting and Charles A. West of Boston. Both gentlemen are making the flight for pleasure, but the observations and opinions as to personal liability to aerial navigators by Colonel Bunting, who is a director in the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, will be of great interest and value to life insurance companies and the board of underwriters. Colonel Bunting will be the first director of a life insurance company to make an ascension.

Life insurance companies in this country are inclined to look upon aerial navigators as a hazardous risk, declining to issue to them new policies, but in the case of Mr. Glidden, who carries a heavy life insurance, and is ballooning only for pleasure and scientific purposes, and not as a professional aeronaut, all the companies carrying risks have added a clause permitting him to motor and balloon to an unlimited extent in all parts of the world, but these companies, as well as others, have refused to issue to Mr. Glidden new policies.

Colonel Bunting's report as to the liability incurred may enable life insurance companies to adopt a plan upon which pilots of balloons, dirigibles and aeroplanes can obtain all the life insurance they desire.

GRAFTER SENTENCED.

PITTSBURG, July 14.—Common Councilman A. V. Simon was to-day sentenced to four months' imprisonment and fined $200 as the result of his conviction on graft charges.

SCORE FLEE FROM FLAMES IN DARKNESS

More than a score of people, aroused from their slumbers by policemen, firemen and others, fled panic-stricken down smoke-filled stairways, in dark they could hardly see, during a fire in the five-story brick building at No. 374 Columbus avenue, early to-day.

Several of the inmates, weakened by the smoke, had narrow escapes from injury as they tripped and stumbled down over the stairs while groping their way to the street in the darkness. Many of those found on the stairways in a dazed condition were assisted to the street by police men and volunteers. The inmates of the burned building, clad only in their night clothes, did not have time to properly attire themselves before the warning came to leave the building, and they reached the street but partly dressed.

The entire neighborhood was awakened, and the doors of several neighbors' homes were thrown open to the panic stricken people. The building is occupied as a lodging house by Mrs. Betsey Hall. Several of the lodgers carried out what valuables and articles of jewelry they were able to snatch up before being driven from their rooms by the police.

Although the fire was confined to the top floor and the roof of the building, many of the lodgers occupying upper rooms were in danger of being overcome by the dense smoke and were given a hard scare.

Ladders were shot high above the roof as it was at first thought that the escape of some of the lodgers had been cut off by the flames. Firemen who had mastered up the ladders found that everybody had escaped from the two top floors of the building in safety.

Almost everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

EX-GOV. GUILD TO MEET TAFT TO-MORROW

BEVERLY, July 14—President Taft will have a long talk to-morrow afternoon with former Governor Guild, who has been appointed special ambassador from the United States to go to Mexico City in September to attend the centennial celebration of the independence of Mexico.

It is understood that Mr. Taft and Mr. Guild will discuss the diplomatic and commercial results to be obtained from the latter's mission. The President is anxious to strengthen the friendly relations between the two republics and when he had his confidential talk stopped at El Paso to meet President Diaz.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Taft will have for a guest W. H. Hoskins, receiver of the California Development Company, and the engineer in charge of the reclamation work in Imperial Valley in Southern California.

It is said that President Taft is going to study the Payne Aldrich tariff in comparison with schedules of foreign countries. He will begin the work when he returns from his yachting cruise.

The President is getting ready to show members of the Summer colony at Bar Harbor all about the fine points of golf. He starts on his trip Down East next Monday on the Mayflower. He is a foresome going around the Myopia Club course with Captain Butt, his military aide, as his opponent.

Captain Butt seems to be the only player here who can give the President any kind of a game. It is said that the President will play on the Kebo Country Club course.

Captain George Logan of the Mayflower was his guest at luncheon today and the history of the eastern trip was being discussed.

ICE CREAM CAUSES TYPHOID FEVER

Ellen Quirk, daughter of John Quirk, of No. 64 Calvary street, Waltham, was stricken with typhoid fever after eating ice cream from an itinerant vender's cart.

Many other children in Waltham ate ice cream from the same cart, and an epidemic is feared. The man from whom the ice cream was bought is said to be a Boston vender, who runs the cream to Waltham from Boston.

LIGHTNING STUNS WHITMAN OPERATOR

WHITMA , July 14—A severe electrical storm passed over this town. The lightning entered the railroad station and telegraph operator, D. D. McLeod, was rendered unconscious. He was found in this condition a short time after the arrival of railroad employes who were forced to break open the door as they could not arouse the office. Medical attendance was secured, but it was almost an hour before he regained consciousness. No serious results are anticipated.

LOVE TRAGEDY SECRET IS OUT

NEW YORK, July 14—The secret in the divorce proceedings of Frederick Berwind Gilpin, who has long been known as the "handsomest bachelor in Philadelphia," was disclosed yesterday when the record in the Supreme Court showed the name of Mrs. Pauline Caffrey, who is herself noted for her girlish beauty, as one of the defendants. Mrs. Caffrey is the divorced wife of Thomas McD. Caffrey, of No. 211 West One Hundred and Fourth street. The same witnesses that were used by Mr. Gilpin will be asked to testify for Mrs. Gilpin, who is due to the fact that a Miss Charles Gilpin, member of the Racquet Club, was also mentioned in the T. McD. Caffrey divorce trial.

Mrs. Gilpin was Miss Frederica Berwind, daughter of Charles G. Berwind, the railroad director, coal operator and multi-millionaire of Philadelphia and New York. Her wedding to Charles Gilpin, III., nominal in club and university circles, was one of the most brilliant ever celebrated in the Quaker City.

SIX DEAD IN PORTLAND FIRE

PORTLAND, Or., July 14.—Fire in the west central portion of the city, just on the edge of the business section early today, resulted in the loss of at least six lives, the injury of several persons, the burning of 150 houses and a financial damage of about $750,000.

The fire is believed to have started in the sidescreen of the Oregon brush company. The burned district covered approximately ten acres, but a large portion of this area was devoted to the Plaisted grounds, and save for the grandstand was practically unimpaired.

The fire started in the old exposition building, an immense wooden structure on the south side of Washington street. The smoke alone ignited the buildings on the north side of Washington street, a low wooden structure on the east side of Union avenue, and the building and plant of the Multnomah Club, all of which were destroyed.

Several large apartment houses, several residences and a number of stores on the north side of Washington street also were destroyed.

FIGHT REVEALS ROMANCE'S END

ALBANY, July 14—Out of the fight at the Fort Orange Club last evening, in which Further Corning, grandson of the first president of the New York Central, struck Archibald Jermain McClure in a quarrel over the latter's pretty wife, developed the fact that an interlocutory decree of divorce was granted to Mrs. McClure at Kingston, where the suit was tried. Mrs. McClure is to resume her maiden name and $1,000 for the maintenance of her five-year-old son, Barclay.

Mrs. McClure has left for the seashore, where she will spend the Summer. She would not discuss the possibility of her marriage to Corning. It is hinted, however, that she had consented to wed the wealthy sinhorn at the expiration of ninety days, when her divorce decree is expected to be made absolute. Her former husband went to Europe after he had practically settled his difficulty with Corning.

McClure married the girl after seeing her picture printed in a magazine. She was Miss Anna Cassin, only daughter of John J. Cassin, a Democratic county leader. McClure is worth millions. He and his wife have been prominently identified with society.

6 HORSES RESCUED FROM STABLE FIRE

Fire to-day did damage to the amount of $500 in a one and one-half story frame barn at No. 282 Bremen street, East Boston, the property of Morris Silverman and used by him as a livery stable. Six horses were rescued from the flames by Patrolman William J. Splaine and other officers who were on their way back to the station from a small blaze in a shed in Montmorenci avenue. Defective electric wiring caused the fire in the stable.

MRS. JUL ISSUE OVE NOTES, NOW SUES HIM

"Burning love notes," alleged to have been written to Miss Annie M. Lawson of Lynn, a trained nurse, by Dr. Sandy Glasser, a young dentist of No. 454 Dudley street, Roxbury, who graduated from Harvard Dental School two years ago, will be used, it is said to-day, at the trial of her suit against the dentist for alleged breach of promise to marry. Miss Lawson has entered suit for $5,000 in the Suffolk Superior Court. Her attorney, S. A. Noon, says the girl has a number of letters from the defendant. The latter denied that he ever asked the girl to marry him. He admits, however, that he wrote to the girl while he was a student and before he was of age.

Attorney Noon made this statement regarding the suit:

"The plaintiff is a young woman twenty-two years of age, and is a trained nurse. She met the defendant in November, 1908, at his aunt's house in Revere, where she was employed as a nurse. His aunt's name is Mrs. A. B. Gordon. An intimacy sprung up between them and he was very attentive to her until this time until about the first of May of this year, when he refused to see her any more. He then asked her to marry him in the Summer of 1907 and she consented. The plaintiff has kept all the letters received from him and they will be used as evidence at the trial.

"Later both Dr. Glasser and his aunt were sued at the latter's residence in Revere, and both declared that this was the first time they had heard the plaintiff was a nurse. Mrs. Gordon said she engaged 'Annie' to nurse the plaintiff, early in 1906, as a maid, and that the girl had worked in that capacity for about the latter part of 1907. She also said that during part of the time Dr. Glasser, then a student at the dental school, lived with his family, his expenses at school being paid by her husband.

"Miss Lawson has no case against me," declared Dr. Glasser, "and I have no fear as to the outcome of her suit. I never asked her to marry me; such a thing as marriage was never mentioned between us. I did write her some letters when I was about twenty years of age and a certain degree of intimacy existed between us, but it was nothing of a serious nature. I do not believe she is bringing this action of her own volition. I think it is being done at the instigation of my enemies."

BOSTON MAN HEAD OF NEW COLLEGE

BRUNSWICK, Me., July 14.—William Tenfant Foster, who has for several years been professor in Bowdoin College, has been elected president of the Reed Institute of Portland, Ore., a new college, to be opened in September 1911.

Professor Foster came to Bowdoin in 1905. He was born in Boston thirty-one years ago, and was formerly secretary and manager of the Roxbury Enterprise, a school paper.

He entered Harvard in 1897, and worked his way through college, engaged in more than thirty occupations during his four years.

LAY 31 YEARS IN BED WITHOUT SPEAKING

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 14.—Thirty-one years ago silas Hoffman lost his farm at a sheriff's sale and declared he would never work, or speak again except to his family.

He went to bed and there he stayed until he died at the age of sixty-seven. He kept his vow to remain silent.

SOCIETY LEADER NEARLY DROWNED OFF NEWPORT

Mrs. Henry Clews.

PRINCE 'FORGOT' HIS HOTEL BILL

Prince Jaisingrao, son of the Gaekwar of Baroda and a Harvard freshman, says that hereafter when he goes into a Boston Hotel he will carry his food and drink with him. Before starting on his vacation the prince ran up a bill of $49.50 for food and drink at the Hotel Lenox. He forgot the account until it was called to his attention at the Hotel Plaza, New York, by two Boston city marshals who arrived over at the behest of the Lenox proprietors and threatened to arrest a few of the Gaekwar's fifty trunks unless the bill was settled. The Prince borrowed the money of the clerk at the Plaza and paid it. It is said that the amount was for food and drink purchased in one month.

EMULATED WIFE AS SELF SLAYER

BRISTOL, Vt., July 14.—Following the example of his wife, who took her own life last December, Frank Ladue, a veteran of the Civil War, committed suicide by taking an ounce of carbolic acid. Mrs. Ladue hanged herself. Ladue was sixty-six years of age and had been acting strangely for some time.

MRS. CLEWS IS SAVED IN SURF BY MRS. DOLAN

NEWPORT, July 14.—Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia, in the heroine of the society colony to-day, following a thrilling rescue she made in the surf at Bailey's beach in saving the life of Mrs. Henry Clews, wife of the New York banker.

The waves were running high and few persons were in the water. Mrs. Clews, an expert swimmer, went far out from shore, and was buffeting the high rollers when an unusually high one broke over her head and sent her down choking and gasping.

When she came to the top again and lofty waves swept over her and sent her down again. She struggled with all her strength and skill, but could make no progress toward shore, and could scarcely keep afloat. She called for help, but her choked voice did not reach the beach.

Mrs. Dolan who was paddling about just beyond the breaker line, heard faint cries and, looking seaward, saw her friend's distress. With a strong overhand racing stroke she went to the rescue. She reached Mrs. Clews as the latter's strength was almost gone.

With reassuring words Mrs. Dolan got Mrs. Clews to grip a hand upon her shoulder while she swam shoreward. Mrs. Clews kept her head and did not struggle, allowing herself to be towed in and placing as little weight as possible upon Mrs. Dolan.

The Philadelphia matron kept pluckily to the long swim without showing the general exhausting minutes, but the satisfaction of reaching wading depth and supporting her friend to the beach and then scarcely were able to walk and were obliged to rest for a long time before they dressed and left the beach.

Mrs. Dolan went to her cottage without mentioning her brave deed to any one and it was not until to-day when Mrs. Clews made the facts known to her friends that the colony heard the story.

WOMAN'S LIFE WON IN DEATH RACE

As the result of the quick work of two surgeons, Mrs. Helen Brown, thirty, of South Hanson, is at the Boston Lying-In Hospital to-day with a good chance of recovery, after a delicate and very difficult surgical operation. After being carried on a borrowed cot bed, across the country fields, Mrs. Brown was assisted to catch a fast express train, which was flagged at Bournetown. That her life was saved was due to the fact that the New York, New Haven & Hartford conductor agreed to bring the train to Boston.

Mrs. Brown was stricken suddenly ill at her home. Dr. G. E. Lentine of South Hanson and Dr. Joseph Brennan were summoned. Both agreed that it was a case of life or death for an immediate operation. The express train was due at Bournetown in ten minutes. The two physicians assisted the woman to the station house, and J. Bourne of Bournetown, carried the sick woman in his arms and succeeded in flagging the train was explained to the station agent, and Conductor Hallett accepted his charge.

BEE SWARM LIGHTS ON TROLLEY CAR

VERONA, N. J., July 14.—Fifty men and women aboard a Bloomfield avenue trolley car between this town and Caldwell, spent twenty minutes fighting a swarm of bees that tried to hive in the car. The swarm appeared when a gust of wind and the motorman stopped to let it go by, the passengers watching from their seats with interest.

The bees liked the looks of the car, however, and swooped in the open door. In the effort to close the car door was not quick enough and into the car they went. The motorman then got out his rain coat and used it as a weapon. The fight was on until hundreds were killed and the others had passed on. Several passengers were stung.

PINCHOT POLICY THREATENS SPLIT

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 14.—So acute has become the situation over the allegation that Pinchot policies are to dominate the National Conservation Congress, which is scheduled to be held in St. Paul next September, that the conservation leaders, headed by Governor Eberhart, have gone to Chicago to confer with Gifford Pinchot, President P. S. Reed and Secretary Thomas R. Shipp of the congress regarding the resultive progress.

It is predicted that if no argument is reached a split in the conservation forces may ensue, with the result that Kansas City may get the congress.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT DECLARES AMERICAN HUSBANDS ARE BEST

LONDON, July 13.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to-day uttered a prompt and sharp denial to the report that she had in any way reflected upon the chivalry of the American man or criticised his attitude toward his wife and his lack of liberality.

Mrs. Belmont's attention was drawn to a quotation attributed to her in a New York newspaper of July 12, as follows:

"The wife does all the work for the husband and gets no money for it. She ought to get half of what the man earns. The wife ought to be the man's equal, not his servant."

Mrs. Belmont was reported to have been discussing relations of husband and wife in the United States when the above statements were made. Mrs. Belmont dictated the following statement for the AMERICAN to-night:

"Americans are the best and most chivalrous of husbands, because of their great goodness to women. A majority of the women up to the present have not seen the necessity of asking for a vote. Is it perfect nonsense to quote me as saying American husbands treat their wives like servants and that they do not give them a fair share of their earnings.

"The men of the United States have always given their wives too much of their earnings, and thus haven't made them sufficiently self-reliant. I have the profoundest admiration for American men, but think that they have always done too much for my fellow-countrywomen."

Mrs. Belmont has been watching the course of the Franchise bill in the House of Commons. Referring to its second reading, she said:

"I think the English suffragists have achieved a great victory. They ought to have every reason to believe that the first important step has been gained. They firmly believe that this will lead them to a complete success.

"After enfranchisement the English women do not believe that the American men will allow their women to remain without the franchise. I listened to the debate in the House of Commons and was greatly impressed by the ignorance of those who spoke against the bill. They were so far behind a realization of the real facts that it was ennobling.

"Most of these men, it struck me, were still imagining themselves living in the past ages. On the other hand, I think the women of England perfectly extraordinary in their knowledge of the political situation, and consider them thoroughly conversant with the ideas and interests of the day."

LEAVES ARMY FOR HEIRESS

BALTIMORE, July 14.—President Taft has accepted the resignation of Lieutenant Bruce Cotton of the Coast Artillery Corps, stationed at the famous Fort McHenry, Baltimore, and it is reported that the handsome lieutenant, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, is to soon marry the beautiful and wealthy Mrs. Jesse Tyson of this city. Both Lieutenant Cotton and Mrs. Tyson are en route to Europe, and it is expected that they will meet abroad, wed and spend their honeymoon there.

Mrs. Tyson was Miss Edyth Johns, a Baltimore belle, when she met Jesse Tyson. She was considerably younger than her husband. When he died he left her an immense fortune, and she has had an army of suitors ever since.

CUP DEFENDER IN FIRE PERIL

NEW YORK, July 14.—The old cup defender Reliance escaped destruction by fire early to-day when three high-power motor boats, one racing yacht and the buildings of M. D. Nevins & Co.'s shipyard on City Island were destroyed. Thousands of persons viewed the scene while the flames raged and threatened adjoining property. The Reliance was in dry dock less than 150 feet from the subgrade. The damage was $30,000.

The yacht destroyed was owned by J. M. Mitchell of New York and was to have been launched Saturday. It was built to compete in a cup race in Germany, and was to have been shipped to that country next week. The craft was to have been christened Chieftain.

MRS. GODFREY, WHO IS ENGAGED TO JAY GOULD

MRS. GODFREY TO BE BRIDE OF JAY GOULD

DAVENPORT, Ia., July 14.—Beatrice Blanche Bruner Godfrey, who figured in a romantic marriage with Arthur W. Godfrey of Boston, and was divorced, is engaged to Jay Gould, according to Mrs. A. Bruner, her mother.

Mrs. Godfrey formerly lived here and went to the New England Conservatory of Music.

As Beatrice von Bruner, the girl is now on the stage in London, her mother says. Mr. Gould is also understood to be there.

Beatrice Bruner Godfrey in 1907 attended the New England Conservatory of Music. She met Arthur W. Godfrey, the son of Lester N. Godfrey, a millionaire lumberman, at class day at Harvard, where he graduated in 1906.

A quick courtship followed, and the two eloped and were married September 23 of that year. They lived in this city, but after a short time disagreements arose and they separated.

Godfrey filed a suit for divorce, in which he named Richard Carle, the actor, and John H. McCarthy of Boston as corespondents. Soon after, Godfrey died of a cross libel, alleging desertion and cruelty. About the same time he brought action against her husband's father for alienation of her husband's affections. Godfrey withdrew his action before the trial, and Mrs. Godfrey was granted a divorce February 12, 1909.

Superintendent of Streets Louis K. Rourke, who has found many loose things in several dockets of the Street Department, will be early caller upon the commission in the new day, and quickly as it has prolonged, gave rise to much speculation.

FINED FOR SELLING MILK; NO LICENSE

Three storekeepers were arraigned in the South Boston District Court on the charge of selling milk without a license, and two paid fines of $20 each, and Samuel Saglio of No. 153 D street and Louis Killian of No. 90 I street, Mrs. Mary Slattery of No. 311 D street, though considered guilty by Judge Fallon, was placed upon a file through the action of Milk Inspector Jordan, who prosecuted the case.

250 MACHINISTS STRIKE AT ATHOL

ATHOL, July 14.—Two hundred and fifty machinists of the Union Twist Drill Company went on strike to-day. The trouble was caused by the discharge of two men, the machinists claiming that when the shop committee called upon members of the corporation and asked for their reinstatement, all of the committeemen were discharged.

MAUDE ADAMS OFF ON TRIP TO IRELAND

NEW YORK, July 14.—Maude Adams was among those sailing on the Mauretania yesterday. She has taken a cottage near Trinity College, Dublin, and there will see no one, spending the Summer in absolute seclusion, after stopping a day or two in London, where she is to confer with J. M. Barrie upon a new comedy.

LEATHER MEN GO TO SALEM FOR AN OUTING

Under the dual slogans of "Live Together" and "Made in New England," the representatives of all the varied shoe and leather interests held their annual convention and outing to-day at Salem Willows, Salem. The big steamer South Shore, which belt Howe's wharf with more people aboard every department of the New England shoe and leather industries, was crowded to the rails. Railroad trains and automobiles carried hundreds of others to the famous Willows.

The solid foundation of individual and collective successful enterprises and the common interests and benefactions of this great industry of New England were two of the keynotes sounded by Charles C. Hoyt, president of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, chairman of the convention and toastmaster of the dinner which was held at noon in the pavilion at the Willows.

Senator and Mayor There.

The other speakers at the dinner were Senator Lodge, Mayor Fitzgerald, Charles H. Jones, Elisha W. Cole and Alfred W. Donovan, president of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club. President Hoyt among other things said:

"We claim a great and home heritage from industrious and able ancestors in accumulated capital and mechanical skill. Let us not be recreant to this trust, but rather conserve and increase our splendid inheritance. May continued prosperity and the supremacy be not only ours, but may our children and our children's children live to see New England still at the right of the line in this branch of the great industrial army of the nation."

Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company, paid a glowing tribute to Senator Lodge for his influencing tariff legislation so as to benefit the shoe and leather trade of New England.

A stinging thrust at the Shoe Machinery Trust he delivered when he said:

"What the shoe trade needs to correct the unfortunate condition in which a part of the business is found to-day is independent competent machinery. Competition is good for the consumer of shoes, the maker of shoes and the maker of leather, why is it not good for the maker of machinery as well. Somebody, under whatever guise you hide it, is a curse, a blight on healthy industry, and should no longer tolerated in any form in such an industry as ours."

Plea for Publicity.

Alfred W. Donovan pleaded for publicity as the spur for the trade. He said of this:

"We are gathered here—manufacturers, dealers, salesmen, superintendents, foremen, stockkeepers, cutters, representatives of a score of kindred industries, for what? If there is one particular thing we are here for to-day, it is to consider the question of publicity, the miracle-worker in the business world—publicity. That, gentlemen of the trade, what we have taken this delightful journey to this favored spot for, and that is why we have called together this splendid assemblage, representing the several branches of our great $400,000,000 New England shoe and leather trade.

"The statesmen and famous men of New England have been all too slow in recognizing the importance to their profession of that scientific and persistent publicity we hear so much about in the business world to-day—the application of that drop of water which makes millions flash—but I am glad to say that they have at last begun to think of turning over a new leaf.

"The distinguished and specially invited guests of the shoe and leather men to-day were:

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.
Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston.
Congressman Ernest W. Roberts.
Mayor Arthur Howard of Salem.
President R. S. Baker of the Lynn Board of Trade.
President Charles C. Hoyt of the New England Shoe and Leather Association.
President Alfred W. Donovan of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club.
President George W. Coleman of the Pilgrim Publicity Association.
C. P. Gaither, New England agent of the Virginia Tennessee & Georgia Air Line.
Arthur B. Butman, special agent of the Department of Commerce and Labor.
President Charles H. Jones of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Co.
Elisha W. Cobb of Beggs & Cobb, Inc., Boston.
Secretary Herbert A. Whiting of the Boston Credit Men's Association.
Secretary Frank L. Gage of the Marlboro Board of Trade.
President Fred A. Fuller of the Salem Willows Improvement Association.
President John Robson of the Salem Board of Trade.
J. C. B. Smith of Salem Willows.

HEIR ARRESTED AS A VAGRANT

Although his father, who died two years ago, left a fortune of $45,000, Asa S. Mitchell, sixty years old, of No. 715 Sixth street, South Boston, was arraigned in Quincy Court to-day on the charge of vagrancy. He and his wife, Harriet, were arrested upon the complaint of the wife of Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy, at whose house the couple applied for aims, pleading that they had walked from South Boston to Quincy on their way to Fore River, where they hoped to get employment.

The aged couple told a pitiful story to Mrs. Burrell, saying that they could give food no further unless they had food. In court to-day Mitchell told a story, which was verified by his attorney, James Creed, to the effect that his father, Asa S. Mitchell, a wealthy lumber dealer of Boston, died a few years ago, leaving an estate valued at $45,000. Of this the defendant says he received nothing. He has altered his mode of life, and proceedings are under way to place his petition before a higher court. Both husband and wife were placed on probation.

FIGHT ON CANNON DUE TO LABOR MEN.

It was organized labor which brought about the recent successful fight on Speaker Cannon and the House rules, although this is not generally known, and we can be responsible for much more if we only make our ballots count. We should have thirty or forty members of Congress friendly to our cause, and if this were the case we would have some legislation favorable to our interests enacted.—Frank Morrison, secretary A. F. of L., in address at Washington.

DROWNED ARE IDENTIFIED

LOWELL, July 14. The identification of the victims of the double drowning in the Merrimac River last night was learned to-day, though the quest for the bodies has thus far proven unsuccessful.

The young man was Richard Hoffman of Pawtucketville, an employe of the Talbot mills at North Billerica, and the young woman was Mary A. Clegg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clegg, of No. 26 Dutton street. The identity of both was established through articles found floating in the river.

Hoffman and the young woman were out in a canoe when it was run down by a motor boat. Both were thrown into the water, and though Drummond J. Gregoire, the owner of the other craft, plunged overboard in an effort to save either one or both, he was unable to reach them before they disappeared.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE ISSUES AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF THE BLIND

NEWPORT, R. I., July 14.—There is to be a sale this week at the residence of Mrs. Theodore Kane Gibbs, of fancy articles made by the blind of Rhode Island. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has issued a public appeal in their behalf, in which she says:

"Not long ago those who had lost their sight after reaching years of maturity too often remained idle, therefore sad and depressed.

"The work of teaching the adult blind in their homes, done under the auspices of the State Board of Education, has wrought a wonderful and netient change.

"Those who sat in darkness have seen a great light. The teachers, are themselves blind, go about from house to house, instructing, encouraging, stimulating their shut-in pupils.

"One old lady, ninety-one years of age, who lost her sight a few years has learned to read with her fingers. An ex-seamstress, who had given her work when her eyes failed, has been enabled to become one man support himself by the sale of his baskets, another canes ese are but a few instances of the good accomplished.

The aim is to reach and assist all the blind people in Rhode Island. Those of sufficient age are sent to the Perkins Institution for the Blind at South Boston, established and presided over for more than forty years by my husband, the late Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe. Adults are trained to earn their living wholly or in part, and are taught to read and write.

"This noble work of giving independence and cheer to the sightless commends itself to all humane and intelligent people, and all the proceeds of the sale go to the blind workers themselves. It is hoped the attendance and profits will be large."

Eat these dainty, crisp flakes for breakfast every day and drive away the demon

BOY DIES AFTER HORSEFLY BITE

LA CROSSE, Wis., July 14.—Bitten by a horsefly while out fishing and then handling a snake, are causes to which is attributed the sudden death of Ernest Ostrerin, twenty years old. The young man was taken ill and before a doctor could reach him he became unconscious and died. A pimple formed near his mouth upon his cheek, and the bite of the fly, added to the weight a doctor's aid when it began to cause him pain.

RUMOR NORTON WILL SUCCEED MACVEAGH

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The statement is made in usually well-informed circles that Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury will resign in the fall and be succeeded by Charles D. Norton, private secretary to President Taft. Mr. Norton also has attracted considerable attention of senator Aldrich, with whom he has been closely identified in preparation of the tariff bill.

ENGLAND SOBERS UP $54,000,000 WORTH.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The United Kingdom sobered up $54,000,000 worth in the year 1909, according to figures furnished this Government by Consul General John L. Griffiths of London, who reported a marked falling off in the consumption of intoxicating liquors in the British realm during 1909. This is but one item among expended for liquors was $730,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000 from 1908.

HOW TO KEEP COOL WITHOUT LEAVING CITY

Keep cool!

You don't have to join the expedition to the South Pole to do it, according to the doctors. You can keep reasonably comfortable right here in Boston, despite the hot wave, they say. But the principal thing is—to keep cool.

"This means, keep out of the hot sun," says Doctor Afredo White of the Boston City Hospital. "The sun starts all the trouble in heat prostrations, but the cure—less individual helps some. The sun's rays derange the circulatory and the respiratory systems.

"The temperature of the body rises. If a person perspires freely, much of the surplus heat is given off. But when the humidity is great, the increased air pressure on the body interferes with action of the sweat glands.

Eat Light Food.

"Sometimes the heat of the body is so great that the nitrogen in the tissues coagulates. Then the organs cannot perform their functions and death results.

"With the entire system disturbed, the less work put upon it the better. Eat light food, which is easily digested. Don't take iced drinks, which increase the disturbance in the system. Above all things, beware of alcoholic beverages. Keep the mind equable. Don't rush. In short—keep cool."

Help For Babies.

Dr. Benjamin A. Graves of Dorchester, a well-known authority on babies, tells how to keep the little ones cool during the hot spells.

Infants up to the age of one year during this hot weather should have the best of care. Dress them lightly. Bathe them frequently. Keep them in a cool place. Much relief can be given them by frequent sponge baths with cool water. A sponge or soft towel dipped in cool water, the excess of water squeezed out of it, then the child gently sponged all over, but especially about the head and back and under the arms gives great relief quickly. Good clean unadulterated cool water is about all that is necessary. Try to the grown ups "Don't Worry."

RESCUE TWO AS CANOE CAPSIZES

GLOUCESTER, July 14. — Wallace Campbell, twenty-two, and his companion, Nicholas Piper, were rescued from drowning here by Sane Webber and Alex McDonald, who pulled the two men out of the water after their canoe tipped over.

Piper and Campbell took to paddling stunts, and started on a canoe ride abound the harbor before either had finished work. The canoe was tied up at the landing, and Campbell leaped into it without warning, but when Piper jumped into it it was overturned.

Neither man could swim, and there was the utmost excitement for time before Webber and McDonald heard their cries for help, however, and hurried to the rescue.

PINCHOT POLICY THREATENS SPLIT

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 14.—So acute has become the situation over the resignation that Pinchot policies are to dominate the national conservation congress, which is scheduled to be held in St. Paul early in September. That the conservation leaders boosted by Governor Adams, of Colorado, to hold a conference with Gifford Pinchot, President P. N. Bird and Secretary Thomas R. Shipp of the congress regarding the situation is admitted.

It was predicted that if no agreement is reached a split in the conservation ranks may ensue, with the result that Kansas City may get the congress, and a new conservation movement, more friendly to the Taft administration, may be formed in Minneapolis.

LIGHTNING ROLLS DOWN MAN'S BACK

EAST WATERFORD, Me., July 14. During the recent heavy shower, lightning entered the cupola of the barn at F. D. Knightly's, East Waterford. E. B. Knightly and David Thurston were taking hay from the hay fork at the time. Knightly fell to the floor. The lightning ran down M. back, rolled down one stocking and it is said one foot for some distance, but otherwise did not injure him. A horse was in the shafts and was killed. The barn was started on fire by the lightning, but the house was broken into and the fire extinguished before it burned. The lightning ran down on the hay fork and after killing the shafts, went out an open window by the horse's head.

DEAD OF LOCKJAW FROM TOY PISTOL

PORTLAND, Me., July 14.—James M. King, eleven years of age, living at No. 18 Cotton street, is dead of lockjaw as the result of a toy pistol he blew off at the Fourth of July. The boy was in good condition to save his life, but it was impossible to do so. This is the first death in this state this year from the aftermath of Fourth of July celebrating.

Brown-Tail Moth Rash Yields to Cuticura

Soap and Cuticura Ointment. A single warm bath with Cuticura Soap, assisted by a gentle application of Cuticura Ointment, is usually sufficient to afford immediate relief from the distressing itching of this prevalent affliction.

ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES THE RENO FIGHT AND MOVING PICTURE SHOW

NEW YORK, July 14—Theodore Roosevelt has come out against the prize fight after many years a strong adherent of boxing. Furthermore, he declares unqualifiedly against the exhibition of moving pictures of a fight, more especially the Johnson-Jeffries affair at Reno. In the Outlook, bearing the date of July 16, the former President contributes a signed editorial under the caption "The Recent Prize Fight," in which he discloses as follows his views on boxing and as an exercise, and modern prize-ring conditions as an incentive to crookedness:

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

I have always been fond of boxing, and have always believed in it as a vigorous, manly pastime, one of those pastimes which have a distinct moral and physical value, because they encourage such essential virtues as courage, hardihood, endurance and self-control. Until within a few years I used to box a great deal myself and when I was young several times took part in contests of a public or semi-public nature—generally, I am bound to say, with ill success.

I think boxing is a sport which should be encouraged among boys and young men generally. I have been glad to help it so far as I could in the army and navy, where, I believe, it has been an excellent thing for the enlisted men.

When I was Police Commissioner, I was much struck by a statement made to me by Jacob Riis to the effect that the establishment of boxing clubs in many of the poorer districts had resulted in quite a rather unexpected way; that is, it had not only given the vigorous young fellows who otherwise would join "gangs" a legitimate outlet for their activities, but had also markedly reduced the number of affrays in which the clubs was used. The spirit produced by the boxing had told against knife-fighting, and distinctly encouraged unfair play.

The Good Side of Boxing.

Therefore, from every standpoint, I believe in the encouragement of boxing as a sport. Moreover, boxing as a profession has its good side also. Among the men whose friendship and regard I have really valued I could name a number of professional boxers, including several ring champions. The men to whom I refer I found square, decent men, who elevated themselves good citizens when their good citizenship was tested.

New Treatment for the Hair.

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle in the hair and scalp. The natural oil on your head holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff and scalp troubles. The pores in your scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then your hair begins to fall out. Cleanliness is the one and only thing needed. You don't need tonics, preservers, invigorators or hair growers; you need Birt's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation. It is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp. Tubes 25c, jars 50c.

I approved of the movement, which in this State, at the time that I was Police Commissioner, resulted in the enactment of a law permitting contests between professional boxers, under conditions which were meant to safeguard the sport against brutality and the other evils which have everywhere resulted sooner or later in the suppression of the prize ring. I was very glad of these public boxing contests, in which the letter of the law was carried out in good faith.

Nevertheless, even under this law, crimes crept in, and, finally, one or two fights occurred where the surrounding circumstances were so scandalous that when I was Governor I was obliged to advocate, and finally to secure, the repeal of the law under which the contests took place, feeling convinced, together with the great majority of the citizens of the State, that under it fewer ill than many more glaring objectionable and demoralizing had gradually been revived.

Has Fighters for Friends.

Now this was my experience, the experience of a man who, so far from being prejudiced against boxing, was and is a warm advocate of it, and who, at the outset, had not the slightest prejudice against professional boxing—that is, boxing for purses of money—and who had numbered among his friends many men who were professionals and had fought for fighting prizes.

I am sure that what had happened in New York will happen in the nation at large, and that prize fighting will be, as it ought to be, stopped in every State of the Union. Since it was stopped in New York the conditions surrounding the ring have grown worse, and not better. The money prizes fought for are enormous, and are a potent source of demoralization in themselves, while they are often so arranged as either to be a premium on crookedness or else to reward nearly as amply the man who fails as the man who succeeds.

The betting and gambling upon the result are thoroughly unhealthy, and the moving-picture part of the proceedings has introduced a new method of money-getting and of demoralization.

In addition, the last contest provoked a very unfortunate display of race antagonism. I sincerely trust that public sentiment will be so aroused, and will make itself felt so effectively, as to guarantee that in the future prize fights of this type shall take place in the United States, and it would be an admirable thing if some method could be devised to stop the exhibition of the moving pictures also.

MACHINE CRUSHES ARM.

John E. Calderwood, aged twenty, of No. 5 Laurel street, Roxbury was caught in the machinery of the American Gauge and Valve Company today and was taken to City Hospital with a crushed hand and a broken arm.

FIGHT PICTURE CRUSADE WINS MORE SUPPORT

Additional letters showing the rapid spread of the movement to bar the moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight were received by Secretary William Shaw of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. The crusade to prohibit the exhibition of the films was started by Secretary Shaw, in Boston. Word came from Wilkinsburg, Pa., today that the fight pictures will be barred there through the influence of the Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Union.

In a statement which appears today from the headquarters of the Christian Endeavorers in Tremont Temple, Secretary Shaw says:

New C. E. Bulletin.

Monday, July 4, our Independence Day, was dishonored and America was disgraced by one of the most brutal prizefights between a white man and a colored man in the history of the ring. The moral sense of the nation was so outraged by the advance announcements of the fight that Governor Gillett of California, by proclamation drove it out of San Francisco.

If Tonopah refuse in Reno, Nev., to the everlasting disgrace of that city and state. The fight has come and the Christian and moral forces of the country to rise up and demand the suppression of these moving pictures.

The city and state authorities have the power to forbid the exhibition of immoral or disgusting pictures under penalty of revoking the license. No additional law is necessary. All that is needed is an aroused public sentiment that will demand immediate action on the part of the authorities before the floodgates are opened.

Let's give the prizefight its final knockout now by destroying this money-making feature of it.

President Taft and the Governors of all our States have been asked, to use their influence to secure the suppression of the pictures.

REVERE, FALL RIVER AND NEW JERSEY BAR FIGHT FILMS

Revere, Fall River and the State of New Jersey have joined the crusade against the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures. The Selectmen of Revere have notified the managers of moving picture houses at the beach that the films will not be allowed there. At Fall River, Mayor Coughlin has issued an order that the fight films must not be shown publicly until this week and judged them.

Dispatches to-day from New York say that Supreme Court Justice Seaxge after summoning the grand jury and has given jurors that whatever doubt there may be about the law in other States there can be none in New Jersey. He said:

"Our legislature has not only made prize fighting a crime, but has enacted that any person present at such a fight is guilty of a misdemeanor. With such a declaration of the cannot be questioned that an exhibition of moving pictures of such a fight is a public nuisance."

PATROL LEADER OF BOY SCOUTS IN OFFICIAL UNIFORM

ESTATE GOES TO COMBAT WIDOW

It has just been learned that besides arraigning his wife in his will, filed for probate at Cambridge, in which he left her 100 cents, stating it was more than she deserved, Lewis R. Veazie left a note in which he urges John F. Neal who had been named as executor of the will to waive on the entire estate in fighting his wife, Mrs. Alice D. Veazie of No. 12 Sparhawk street, Malden, as she could not break the will.

The value of the estate is $700.

BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT GETS INDORSEMENT AND AID OF MANY MOTHERS

Nothing shows the value of the Boy Scout Movement better than the interest shown by the mothers of New England. Letters from them are received every day at the New England Headquarters, No. 5 Bromfield street. "The movement is indorsed in the most cordial way."

There are many mothers who would like to have their boys go into the country, yet, for various reasons cannot go with them. For all such, the Scout Movement guarantees proper discipline for a boy, so no mother needs worry or fear that he is up country "running wild."

Mrs. Gerrard of No. 7 Hyde Park avenue, Forest Hills, writes:

"I think the American Boy Scout Movement is a grand thing for boys. I shall be glad to buy my boy his uniform and anything else that he requires. He is delighted with the chance to become a scout. I will see that he performs his duty, and will talk it over with his boy friends and help him to form a patrol."

Mrs. Gerrard of No. 26 Prescott street, Somerville, who organized a scout headquarters by sending in a contribution of two dollars.

Mrs. Thomas Crawford, No. 17 Windsor street, Dorchester, personally filled headquarters yesterday. She said that the Scout Movement has her unqualified approval. Mrs. Crawford said that she had personally organize at least two patrols, and that her own boy, who is twelve years old, will be an applicant for one. She also said that several mothers to whom she had spoken are just as interested.

First Uniforms Here To-day.

The first uniforms to be received in Boston were shipped from New York yesterday and are expected to arrive today. Twenty boys picked from several hundred will be equipped at once, and given a special drill in the downtown district during the week.

Watch for them, boys. You will see what an uniform looks like and the kind of boys who are going to be the movement.

If your name appears below it means you have won a 2 add-on book for headquarters, and are requested to correct it at once.

By MARCUS WOODWARD.

The Captain made a Tenderfoot for a month. Within that time a noticeable change takes place in him; as the uniform makes him look a different and finer boy, so the Scout Law and drill make its effect seen physically and morally. He is back to civilization.

In his month's service as a Tenderfoot he acquires a great deal of useful knowledge. He learns about elementary first aid and bandaging—how to restore consciousness to anyone apparently drowned, how to tie bandages, how to make a splint out of his staff, and how to improvise a stretcher with two staves. He learns how to signal by semaphore, and can get through the semaphore alphabet without mistake; practice in time will make him proficient in signaling messages.

It is surprising how quickly Scouts pick up this field of signaling; they seem to drink in knowledge of this sort as a sponge drinks water. More than one Boy Scout troop can next trained army signalers of their own qualities.

One night some Follestone Scouts were practicing signaling on the cliffs, and got into touch with another flashlight. They began sending exchanging messages with a warship. The sailors, however, would not believe that they were Scouts, so quickly and accurately did they signal, and sent a message to say so. The Scouts answered: "If you don't believe us, look out for flags." 6 o'clock on the cliffs with our flags."

At 6 next morning a number of telescopes were turned from the ship to the shore, and there were the Scouts, with their signalling flags and it was seen that their "flag wagging" was as good as their night signalling.

The Outdoor Work.

The outdoor work is most after the Tenderfoot's heart. He studies the art of tracking, and must be able to follow a track, not too obviously made, for half a mile, in a space of twenty-five minutes. He has to set fire to his bonfire himself, who chops a pole of trucking trees on the ground, makes a trail roughly for half-a-mile over grass, stubble, plough and road, as ground allows.

For this little test in observation another is established in some way. The Tenderfoot is taken to where there are shops, for one minute he looks into four shop windows in turn, and then from memory he must write down carefully and correctly one of the shops.

Some practice many observation tests of this sort, especially one called Kim's game. Twenty or thirty small articles are placed on a cloth, and covered with a cloth to be uncovered before the eyes of the boys for one minute by the watch, then again covered. Each scout in turn writes down, one whisper to his Scoutmaster, the names of the articles that he can remember—he not who remembers the greatest number winning the game.

Out of doors the Tenderfoot learns how to lay and light a fire, as a Scout should. He learns that before lighting a fire in the open he must cut away or burn back all bracken, heather, or dry grass round about the place, to prevent a brush-fire blazing, and he learns how to make a fire for cooking, of reduced wood ashes, which gives little flame and can be kept going all night. Before he may pass out of his Tenderfoot class, he must show that he can lay and light a fire in the open, using not more than two matches.

Running Qualifications.

He must be able to go a mile in twelve minutes at Scouts' pace. Any boy could do that, but not every boy could do it in the Scouts' way—running after yards, then walking fifty yards, keeping the patrol keeping time and keeping step one with another.

Before the Tenderfoot is known something about cooking, and he must prove that he is worthy to become a Second Class Scout by showing that he can cook a quarter of a pound of meat and two potatoes without cooking utensils other than the requisition billy.

As a Scout must be thrifty, according to Scout Law, he must have at least a small deposit in a savings bank, one more qualification he must know the situation of the savings.

Write George H. Gordon, Secretary American Boy Scout, New England Headquarters, No. 5 Bromfield street, Boston, for full information.

COOL WEATHER TO STAY A BIT

The breezes from the sea are in evidence to make Boston's weather conditions extremely comfortable today, and are to be continued to-morrow as well, according to the local weather bureau.

Fair to-night and Friday, with variable winds, is the forecast for Boston and vicinity. At 9 o'clock a. m. the mercury showed 78, or Bostonians did not weather other such a temperature, as the humidity was but 47, or 27 below normal, and the ocean breeze did the rest in making things comfortable.

New Orleans today is the hottest city in the country, at 9 a. m., reporting a temperature of 82. Forecaster Smith said that reports from the various sections of the United States showed that little rain was falling.

SEEKS LOST BROTHER.

Mrs. Sarah Dunfey of No. 2 Myrtle street, Allston, has appealed to the BOSTON AMERICAN to find her brother, Abraham Young, who was last heard from in Chicago.

Odd Items.

Squirrels Raid a Pie Wagon.

NEW YORK, July 14—About 100 squirrels raided a bread wagon belonging to Harold Demuller of Paterson on Pompton Turnpike, Grove, N. J., and before they were driven off a number of them were killed and all the bread and pies were spoiled.

Oil Puts City in Gloom.

BOULDER, Col., July 14—An oil, not modernly wise, partly wrecked the plant of the Central Colorado Power Company and plunged the city into darkness last night. The bird, flying down Boulder Canyon, hooked a claw about negative and positive wires, short circuited the current and burned out the plant. The only building burned off, was found to-day.

How Unreasonable!

CHICAGO, July 14—Mrs. Ida O'Callaghan has sued Dr. Charles D. O'Callaghan for separate maintenance because he expected her to live on 20 cents a day. She declares he never gave her more than $1 a day, and most of the time only a quarter.

Dead Clergyman Unreasonable!

LAPORTE, Ind., July 14—Rev. J. J. Cole, recently called to the pastorate of the First Christian Church in this city, with tender his resignation this week. The reason assigned by Mrs. Cole for her action is evidence in his church people for playing checkers with his wife.

Peacock Runs Chicken Farm.

PITTSBURG, July 14—Not only will multi-millionaire Alexander R. Peacock operate a fine poultry farm in Plum township, but he will also erect there a dairy to be operated for profit. Plans for the dairy were announced to-day. Fifty thousand dollars will be spent on the equipment, half of it on a barn. The farm has 150 acres. Mr. Peacock will fifty 150 blooded cows from Canada and with another the business by the latest scientific methods.

Hatches Egg in Stomach.

PITTSBURG, July 14—The stomach of William Douglas of No. 1112 Cherrier street, North Side, became an incubator, and "the only one" that his life. On June 18 Douglas ate turtle soup in which was a turtle egg. The cooking of the egg failed to destroy the life germ. On June 22 Douglas was operated upon in the Presbyterian Hospital, and the partly hatched turtle egg was removed from his intestines.

The WONDER WORKER Shoe Machinery

Not only are the so-called Leases of the United Shoe Machinery Company, in the opinion of eminent lawyers, invalid and unenforceable, but the "WONDER WORKER" MACHINES are, in the opinion of shoe manufacturers, far superior.

Many of the largest and most prominent shoe manufacturers in the country, with their experts, have spent from one to three days each carefully examining the Plant Company's complete factory equipment of "Wonder Worker" shoe machinery in practical operation, turning out thousands of pairs of shoes daily.

Opinion of Mr. H. B. Endicott, of the Endicott-Johnson Company, Boston, and a director of the United Shoe Machinery Company.

June 3, 1910.

Mr. Thomas G. Plant.

My Dear Mr. Plant:

"I wish to thank you for a very interesting day spent yesterday going through your works, and consider it was a very great privilege to be allowed to do so. To be perfectly frank with you, it was a great surprise to me and to my partner, and my experts who were with me. We expected to find machines making Women's welt shoes more or less indifferently, or a sort of make-shift set of machines, by comparison with those in use in other factories; but what we did find was a perfect working set of machinery, all working in harmony and turning out a very fine grade of woman's shoe. In my judgment and that of my experts, what you showed us was by far the most perfect working set of machinery that we have ever seen, or expected to see, and we are satisfied that shoes are being and can be produced on these machines that are first-class in every respect.

"These machines have features, besides the mere saving in royalty, that cannot fail to be attractive to machinery users.

"Thanking you again for the privilege extended to me, I am,"

Yours truly,

H. B. ENDICOTT.

4 AD. GOLFERS IN SEMI-FINALS

BRETON WOODS, N. H., July 14.—Four players meet to-day in the semi-finals of the champion class in the annual tournament of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests.

L. A. Hamilton of Englewood plays W. L. Crocker of Rose Buro, and T. M. Sherman of Yarbondale, the Vice-President's son, plays D. P. Kingsley of St. Andrews, Kingsley defeated G. L. Ferdyce of Youngstown, last year's winner, in a match event that went an extra hole. Equally interesting matches marked the playing in the other divisions, there being five flights and five beaten eights.

"DEGRADING SPORTS" ARE CUBA'S PERIL

The most enlightened countries no longer regard it as manly or cultured or necessary for the development of a proper national character that the people of a country should be permitted to indulge in sports which are bloody and brutal. Just so surely as the people of Cuba are allowed to be debauched by degrading sports and sanctioned gambling, so certainly will their moral character become demoralized until Cuba will cease to be a self-governing nation and become merely an annex to some stronger government with higher ideals and truer moral fibre.—W. C. Stillman, President American Humane Society in letter to President Gomez of Cuba.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

2 BOYS TO TRY SWIM TO LIGHT

Jeremiah Gardner and George F. Bruno, two South Boston boys, well known in the peninsular district as expert swimmers, will attempt next Wednesday to swim from the Lovell Rock Ledge to Boston Light.

What is the feat that so many have failed to accomplish, but these boys, although but eighteen years of age, feel confident they will accomplish.

Those who will attend the boys on their long swim will be Eddie Carr, the South Boston boxer, and Eddie Ware.

DIES ON REUNION EVE.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 14.—Henry Michaels, a Chicago furniture dealer, shot and killed himself while his two brothers, Alfred Michaels, of this city, and Sidney Michaels, of New York, looked on at a local hotel that they might celebrate a reunion after a manner of years. The coroner's jury has attributed to melancholia.

'QUAKE KILLS ONE IN TYROL

BERLIN, July 14.—Dispatches from the Tyrol, in Austria-Hungary, report that one person was killed and twenty others injured by an earthquake at the village of Trinkstein.

The same shock was felt at Munich, where the walls of several buildings were cracked.

The wave-like movement continued for three seconds, thoroughly terrifying the people, who fled from their homes and remained in the streets long after the disturbances had ceased.

The shock was felt also in the surrounding villages, including Gratsch, a resort from Obermarrington, says that no damage was done.

The walls of several schoolhouses cracked, and the teachers and pupils ran shrieking into the streets.

DEALERS FIGHT NEW MILK RATE

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Charging that proposed increased rates on milk announced by railroads entering Boston, to take effect August 1, would raise the price of milk in that city one and one-half and two cents a quart, Boston milk dealers appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission and filed a protest.

They asked that the higher rates be suspended and an investigation made. The increases are said to be 50 and 100 per cent.

GIVES LIFE FOR BOY.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., July 14.—In an attempt to save his drowning grandson, Verle Martin, nine years old, James Mitchell, seventy years old, also lost his life in the St. Joseph River.

MRS. YOUNG SEES NO HARM IN FIGHT FILMS

I see no harm in the exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures. I believe that the agitation against them is a form of hysteria. Anything that tends to the physical development of the youth is a benefit. I do not believe that they should be suppressed, but for the life of me I cannot see why there is anything degrading in two scientific boxers battling for the championship. Boxing is one form of exercise that develops all of the latent talent in youth.—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young of Chicago, president National Education Association.

GIRL HANGS ON FERRIS WHEEL

NEW YORK, July 14.—Louise McKenzie's unwillingness to take a dare carried her 200 feet into the air, where she hung to the rim of a Ferris wheel in an amusement park in the Bronx, to the terror of a crowd below, until rescued by a watchman.

The wheel was turning when one of Miss McKenzie's party dared her to climb on.

"I wouldn't take a dare from any one," she said, and jumped for the outside of the nearest car. She caught it, but could not get inside. Before the engine could be shut off the car had risen to the highest point of its circuit, and there it stuck. John Persi climbed up the iron frame work of the wheel, attached himself to the car by his feet, and, leaning out a window, hauled the girl in.

SOLDIER MAKES 116 STRAIGHT BULLSEYES IN RECORD SHOOT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SHERIFF PU[illegible]AN ON BOUT BETWEEN NELSON AND WOLGAST

SEVEN TEAMS IN HOT BATTLE AT BIG SHOOT

Seven teams of twelve men each, from the New England Interstate, and four in the All-American match battled for supremacy at the Bay State rifle range, Wakefield, this morning. The result of the contest is watched with interest all over the United States as the teams representing Massachusetts and the United States Navy, entered in these matches have always been foes to be reckoned with at the national match which is shot each year at Camp Perry, Ohio.

The 200, 600 and 1,000 yard ranges at once fire claim the attention of the teams to-day and the match will be concluded to-morrow with the 200 yard rapid fire and skirmish runs.

Massachusetts is looked upon as the winner of the Interstate match and is also picked by many to give the United States Navy team a hard battle in the All-American match.

She has, however, worthy opponents in the former match, in the Blue Tree and Granite State teams, while in the latter match the Naval Academy and Marine teams have many supporters.

Fine Scores Made.

In a phenomenal exhibition of marksmanship Corporal Perry S. Schofield of Company E, Fifth Massachusetts, of Medford, nearly doubled the world's record for 50 yards.

He scored 116 consecutive bullseyes, the world's record, held by Captain Stuart W. Wise, inspector of small arms practice of the Sixth Massachusetts, being 60 consecutive hits.

Corporal Schofield had two trial shots and both counted as bullseyes. His official record, therefore, is 114, but he nevertheless totaled 116 consecutively.

When Corporal Schofield had made thirty-ninth bullseye he was seized with a cramp in his leg and had to be assisted to his feet, but continued to shoot until he had scored fifty-two, one more than his rival.

He was then about to leave the line, but his friends urged him to continue, and he did, missing the centre by a narrow margin on his 117th shot.

In spite of the intense heat and humidity yesterday the marksmen kept steadily piling away and under conditions that could have hardly been worse. Many fine scores were made in the various matches that were contested.

Ensign W. F. Amsden of the U. S. Navy team, the winner of the Essex County 200 yard rapid fire match, broke all records for this kind of shooting, making ten consecutive bulls eyes for a perfect score of 50, a performance that is rarely accomplished.

The first man to break a range record at slow fire in the tournament was Gunner Sergeant S. Westcott of the United States Marine Corps, who made a possible score of 50 in 11 minutes 20 seconds, in the Cushing individual match at 200 yards. Lieutenant E. F. Keating of 2d Maine regiment, was close second making 10 bulls over his possible.

Wins Berwick Match.

The Berwick match, shot on the 1,000 yard range, was won by a Massachusetts man, Lieutenant J. E. Burns of Company C, Sixth Regiment of Lowell, with a score of 49 out of a possible 50. Lieutenant H. S. Whitney, U. S. N.; Private C. Barker, First N. H. and Corp. Hildebrandt of the Marine Corps, also had scores of 48, but Burns had the ranking over the others finishing in the order named.

JUST A LITTLE BIT MORE ABOUT THE BIG BATTLE — By TAD

This picture was drawn immediately after the Jeffries-Johnson fight

"JEFF LACKED COURAGE IN FIGHT"---CHOYNSKI

Joe Choynski, professor of physical culture, though, and tried various schemes to amuse Jeff.

"If you recollect, he took my automobile ride the afternoon of Sunday. He thought, perhaps, that he might interest him. He took me around at the speed limit, but he found he worried still. He tried golf, and, with the assistance of Jack, actually went into the rub room late at night to have his muscles rubbed, which he thought would ease his mind and prepare him for slumber.

Spent Awful Night.

"Jeffries must have spent an awful night before the fight in the mood he left us for his bed. That man must have suffered a mental battle that does not fall to the lot of the every-day man. Just figure what was transpiring in his mind. He must have lived over again all his victories of the past, his retirement and life of ease for over six years, the demand of the public that he come out and do battle with Negro and then, finally, the long grind of training with its tiresome and one-sided rules that no one but his trainers will ever know. I tell you he must have had loaded to overflowing, and the result was naturally the breakdown which came, I understand, on Monday at noon, in the rub room at Moana Springs.

"I went down early in the morning to the ring to see everything in readiness for the big fellow's coming. I had many misgivings at the time, based on my knowledge of Jeffries's bulldog courage and gameness, I had hoped for the best that everything would be all right. I thought he would shake off all apprehensions when he warmed up in the ring, and I certainly expected then that Jeffries would beat Johnson.

"If you remember, I stood at the ringside, watched him carefully, but outside of looking pensive, I thought everything was all right. In the dressing room he stripped, tried his shoes and danced about a bit to see if he was there. He did not talk, but fighters don't say anything in their dressing rooms before a fight. Jim appeared fresh and strong, full of energy, however, and I became a little uneasy.

"We were called out to go to the ring and Jeff came along. He acted naturally enough, but was plainly not the victorious fighting lion that entered rings in all his other fights. He was sort of subdued. We boosted ourselves with him, and I confidently expected to see him round to in a round or so. Thus the first two rounds I waited and figured that Jeffries was trying to make Johnson careless so that he could bring over the punch.

"At the end I told him to go in and rough matters. 'Take a punch to give one,' I said, but he went right on fighting the boxing fight. He was not Jeffries; that's all. In the first round he complained of a fight in the left eye, but he only rubbed him, and in the second he stopped one with his left eye that also hurt him. He simply couldn't take the old punishment. The once great courage was gone and he was afraid to mix it. That tells his downfall."

The Cardinals have signed a pitcher named Backus. Backus and Backmanship are and for all, he doesn't spell it. Backmanship will be a confusing pair for the scorers.

* * *

Mal Eason is now a full-fledged National League umpire. He was a handsome little fellow and a regular dude as a pitcher, but we don't know how he may pan out as an umpire.

* * *

Griffith is alleged to have acquired a carload of new wonders. Among them is a third baseman named Brown, from the Northwestern League; also Bob Meinke, a shortstop of the Chicago semi-pros. Meinke is one of the prettiest infielders ever seen, but cannot hit heavy enough for fast company.

* * *

Ray, the Browns' new pitcher, already has the Tigers completely baffled. He has pitched against them three times and won three victories.

* * *

The Montgomery team of the Virginia Valley League has a pitcher named Brinkley. Nicknamed Nell, no doubt, all along the circuit.

* * *

Kitty Bransfield is now doing the pinch-hit act for the Quakers, with marked success. They inked him on first base, though.

* * *

Manager Doom will give a trial to Gill, a first baseman, who is a brother-in-law of Ray Jr. Gill, who played first base for the Pirates a part of last season. Gill has joined the Phillies, and donned a uniform yesterday in Atlantic City when the Phillies tackled the All-Collegians of the seaside resort.

The Doves face the Cincinnati Reds for the second time to-day, and considering what a close argument they gave Griffith's team yesterday, the outlook is strong for a Dove victory to even up things, as they want to keep up the reputation they won in St. Louis.

There are four bouts on the program and they all appear to be of the rapid fire variety.

Following is the line up: Young Jasper vs. Young Bradley, six rounds at 118 pounds; Joe Lynch vs. Young Nelson, six rounds at 128 pounds; Iron Vincent vs. Tony Caponi, six rounds at 145 pounds; Pat Boero vs. Johnny Carvil, eigh rounds at 130 pounds.

The Vincent-Lorenzo bout will probably be a corker, as both boys are clever and it won't be far from being the same thing. The Vincents in those six rounds they proceed a bit of outpointing from any of the local boxers of their weight.

TIGERS AFTER COLLEGE MEN TO AID TEAM

That Detroit has not bettered her pitching staff is not the fault of the men who control affairs of the club. They have tried hard to land men who would strengthen the weak department of the team and they have failed through no reason for which they have been responsible.

The Detroit Club tried to secure five college pitchers this year, all of them ranked high and considered fit for big league society. The quintet included the best intercollegiate flingers in the country.

Fortune has favored Detroit in securing infielders and outfielders, but they are hoodooed every time they angle for twirlers.

The men whom they have tried to secure this year and failed are: Schultz, of the University of Pennsylvania; Furey, of Holy Cross; McHale, of Vermont; De Mott, of Lafayette, and Hicks, of Harvard.

Many considered Schultz the best sinkman of any college team this year. Detroit made strenuous efforts to secure him, but another American league club had already tagged him.

De Mott was tipped off. He has figured prominently in the eastern intercollegiate baseball circles this spring. Detroit offered him $2,000 to pitch for the Tigers the remainder of the season, but De Mott had already promised Cleveland to become a Naps.

Hicks, of Harvard, looked a great find for some American League club. Detroit was the first to put in a bid for the Crimson star. No other big league club had asked for him, and Hicks is not pitching at Bennett park—not this year at least. He also plays tennis and is a golf enthusiast, besides indulging in one or two other pastimes. To request Harvard in these events Hicks must be a sinnumber amateur and he would lose his amateur standing on joining Detroit. It was up to him to choose between playing for a large H or a large salary, and he choose the H.

McHale had already been golden up. The Red Sox got him but refused to invest Boston medder that he was not fast enough, so Detroit probably did not lose by failing to land him.

Foley also says he has promised to pitch under no other colors than those of the American league champions.

The Detroit club will continue keeping a vigilance on the college campus. Sooner or later luck will probably change in Detroit's favor. There are only two college pitchers in Detroit's ranks now—Casey, formerly of Vanderbilt, and "Chief" Lafferty, the idol of the Delaware and Michigan fans. They are getting much experience this year, but are not in the money.

The campus has produced some of the best pitchers in the big league this year and the campus is probably good for several more.

NELSON AND DOHERTY STARS IN LOVE ACT

NEW YORK, July 14.—At the Stanley A. C., Philip J. Nelson, Boston, and Jack Doherty had a ten-round love match, the boys tapping like two old maids. Neither got in how [illegible] and any willing effort Doherty landed most, and if a decision had been rendered Referee Thiele, Tom Sharkey, would have given "it." It was a very tame affair, and the audience showed its approval by frequent hooting.

RED SOX TACKLE CHICAGO IN A DOUBLE-HEADER

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BIG NIGHT TO-NIGHT FOR FIGHT FANS AT THE AMERICAN A. A.

MUTT NEEDS SOME MONEY SO HE PUTS HIS OLD PAL, JEFF, TO WORK . . . BY "BUD" FISHER

PLAYERS SHOULD DRILL IN SLIDING TO SECOND

Some day a man will break into baseball who will revolutionize the game. He will tear down the hive of lazy and ease in which at the present time the major leaguers loll in careless abandon, drive out all the drones and bring about a new era in the great American sport, that will perfect a system of play deemed impossible in the past.

He will be despised and hated. He may even be laughed from the game before his mission is complete, but he will have begun a reformation that all will follow.

The man who could teach a baseball club a theatrical company rehearsing for a new production in one time. The man who was drilling that company knew he must have every member of the cast perfect or it would never "take" with the American public.

Don't Practice Enough.

The hours and hours of drudgery put in by those actors would have driven many a ball player to distraction. One man—a leading man, too—was compelled to make an entrance in one part of the play at least fifty times in one afternoon before he did it in a manner that suited the exacting producer.

Is there a ball player in the major league to-day who would practice fifty times in one morning's practice just to get the form of that action exactly as his manager wanted it?

Baseball has grown into such prominence with the American public that it cannot much longer carry the fans along on traditions. It must improve. It must progress. Old fans will tell you to-day that the present day players do nothing like the ball held that wasn't done in the days when Charley Comiskey led the old St. Louis Browns to four successive pennants.

Teach Them to Work.

If nothing new can be invented managers can at least teach players to do the present things with greater accuracy and dispatch. Very few players are accurate, but in every instance it seems due to the players' own efforts or to their natural ability. Ty Cobb is the greatest base runner and one of the grandest all-around players now in the game, he is the fastest man in the game and because of his qualities. He worked while others slumped.

Managers tell of one player being valuable because he is a good hitter, another because he can bat, another because he can handle a ground ball or a grass cutter, or another because he can go back on a fly ball. There is no reason why every club player in the major leagues shouldn't improve in all these departments.

Incredible as it may seem, few managers drill players in sliding to second. In order to home, yet that is conceded to be one of the principal features of the game. Only side of the bill of sliding one might do the practice games. There is little effort made to teach even the beginners this important feature.

SOX PUT FRAUD UP TO JOHNSON

If the protests of the Chicago White Sox are to be taken seriously, the continued success of the New York Highlanders may easily be explained, and the attention of President Ban Johnson called to the existence of an unfair scheme which it was thought had been thoroughly stamped out last season.

According to the Chicago players, the old scheme, prevalent last year in New York of tipping off the signals of the opposing batteries is again in existence, and day before yesterday, according to the Chicago scribes, two men were caught red-handed at this game, and were brought before Hastings, who has yet to explain their presence in centre field.

The Chicago men claim that ever since the day they opened the box score there they have been suspicious, and that on Tuesday during the progress of the game two of their number went down beside the centre field fence and found there two New York ground employes equipped with glasses and a system of signals.

The Chicago players claim that the same thing is in existence at Philadelphia, and that in all probability complaint will be made of this state of affairs to the head of the American League.

CUTLER WANTS TO MEET GOTCH

CHICAGO, July 14.—If Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, really is sincere in his desire to fight somebody here in his chance.

Charley Cutler, fellow wrestler and former fighter, is anxious to enter into a series of elimination contests, the best man in the bunch to battle Jack Johnson for the title.

But first of all Cutler desires to fight Gotch, and whether the wrestling champion is really there or not, Cutler has mapped out a comprehensive programme and wants the public to know all about it. Cutler knows all about Jack Johnson. He was his sparring partner for years, and while he frankly admits that the negro has it on him in skill, cleverness and speed, he believes his own strength and gameness might carry the day.

According to Cutler's story, he fought Johnson once in Reading, Pa., when Sam Fitzpatrick was manager of the black man. The posts of the ring protruded into the fighting space, and in the very first round Johnson drove the back of Cutler's head into one of them, opening up a deep gash.

Cutler says he was not hurt in the least, but he bled so freely that the referee stopped the contest.

"Never mind, Charley," said Sam Fitzpatrick, "the papers won't get hold of it and it won't affect your record."

Yet the next day the New York papers had stories by Fitz to the effect that Johnson was developing a terrific punch, having knocked Cutler out in one round.

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

R. B. Freeman, the secretary of the Massachusetts Golf association and the winner of the late open tournament at the Wollaston Golf Club played a rather unique shot a few days previous to the open event. It was on the twelfth hole, of an elbow nature that his drive, had resulted in a second teeing up of the ball. His second shot due to the exceptionally high lie of the ball soared way up into the heavens and sailing above, struck the pin and never moved. The ball did not hit the pin, nor did it bound up again, but apparently, resigned itself to the inevitable fate of ending its run in the cup, and figured the "Sooner the Better." A 2, on the twelfth hole is an enviable figure.

T. L. McNamara, former professional at the Wollaston Golf Club, got on there a short time ago and played around with Wally Maguire, the present club professional who was at Inglewood last year. Both pros negotiated 73s, and were all even on the match play. The style of these players is radically different, more noticeable in their putting, McNamara being methodical and taking plenty of time, while Maguire no sooner strikes the stance than he hits the ball. Both of these pros are entered in the State open championship at the Essex County Club this week.

No player had a better chance to take the low gross laurels in the open tournament at the Wollaston Golf Club last Saturday than Claude M. Hart, one of their most enthusiastic golfers, and a 4 handicap man. Out of the eighteen holes he had twelve 4's, and it was only on necessary 6 and 5 that spoiled a 74 and a win. His card was:

Out.....	4	4	4	5	5	4	4	6	—36
In.....	5	5	4	4	5	4	4	5	—36
Total									72—4—78

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

THE SULLIVAN FAMILY OF CAMbridge is going to take a fall out of some of these good scraps going about now. Jack Twin wants to meet Stanley Ketchell at the opening of the Armory A. A. season, and says Stanley don't need to come Jeffries away from the game, but can have all he wants right here in Boston. Jack Twin meets Portland's Flynn July 21, at Portland, Me., in a six-round go. Brother Dan is eager to box Tom Sawyer, Terry Martin or Bartley Connelly for six rounds, and Mike Twin would like to meet the winner of the Willie Lewis-Jim Smith bout or any other of the lambs who may claim the welterweight title. Mike says he will agree to take on Jim Moriarity and Honey Melody for six rounds each at the Mechanics' Club, if there are "proper inducements." Mike ought to be accommodated in the first case, because Willie Lewis says he would like to try it out with all the welterweight champs.

TO "DISGUSTED FAN" WHO IS SOME time sore on the Red Sox: I agree with you that it is sickening to read some of the stush in some of the papers, but I won't print your letter because I refuse to publish anonymous "knocks." A man ought to be willing to stand back of his opinions. I'll bet, too, that "Disgusted Fan" is of the same variety of fans who yelled "take him out" when Arellanes played like a schoolboy in the first inning Monday and then thundered out applause when he pulled out of a tight hole later in the game. Baseball fans are wonderful to behold, here, there and everywhere. But as for the Red Sox, they are playing good ball, on the whole, and with some improvement they have got at least a "look-in" for first place.

YOU DON'T NEED ANY FIELD GLASSes to see what's doing in Pittsburg. On the same wire, the same day, comes first the news that Pittsburg is likely to have an American League team, and second, that Honus Wagner is getting tired of being lionized around on the Pirates, and wants to quit baseball. Honus is getting 10,000 bones a year, but I never saw a man with a freight car load of the kale who wouldn't jump off an eight-story building for a dollar or two more. Do you get it? Can you guess what ails Honus?

IN REPLY TO MANY ANXIOUS FANS, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien fought Bob Fitzsimmons six rounds to no decision, July 4, 1905, at Philadelphia. Fitz was called "Lanky Bob" in thirteen rounds, December 20, 1895, at San Francisco. Fitz was then nearly forty-four years old, O'Brien twenty-seven.

Straight Tips—Will you let me know through your columns what position the Waterbury baseball team of the Connecticut League is in and what team is leading the same league? Respectfully, Thos. J. Meade, Meriden, Ct.

Bridgeport leads Waterbury second, New Haven third, but it's such a close race between the first three that the positions may change almost while you are reading this.

Straight Tips—Please tell me which player, if either batting with a count of two balls and a base runner is declared out, owing not to a batted ball? If such a batter is declared out and batted fly not caught, do base runs a batter when batting with a count of two balls and no base runner is declared out on third strike. Please publish answer in your valuable paper. Thanking you in advance, I am, yours truly, Subscriber, Worcester, Ct.

In the case of a baserunner being hit by a batted ball thereby being put out, the play is usually started at bottom of box score summary. The fielder who was hurt fed the batted fly when batter is out zero the put-out. The catcher gets a put-out on batter being declared out, being hit by third foul strike.

Straight Tips—Would like to hear through your paper whether it is a good idea to carry a rubber shoe should he be a pitcher? J. W. QUINEY, Lowell, Mass.

Quoits—for a purse? You bet your life, a referee and a squad of police, otherwise somebody will likely get walloped over the bean with a quoit or two. Why, the Civil War would be tame beside a game of quoits for a purse without a referee.

Straight Tips—If it will not inconvenience you kindly inform me through your paper as to the nationality of Stanley Ketchel and oblige, B. BRINKERIN.

Ketchel was born at Grand Rapids. He is a Polish-American, father a Pole. His real name is Stanislaus Kiezal.

Straight Tips—Kindly decide the following bet: That Jeffries lose to a knockout or was he disqualified on account of not coming to the ring. Which decision stands? Please decide. HENRY RAYMOND, Brockton.

Johnson will get the credit of a knockout in the records.

Straight Tips—To settle a bet please answer this question: Are Jeffries trained and in condition for the fight. If not, how long before he would be? FRED BARATT, Revere.

A is nearer right, as Jeffries claims he trained over a year, even while he was on his Southern tour.

Straight Tips—Will you kindly settle this argument: A claims that A. Matt's given name is Alexandra and B claims that it is Archibald. JOE GIMO.

A wins.

Straight Tips—A bets Jack Munroe was the decision over Jim Jeffries at Butte, Mont., in four rounds. It may be old not. Who wins? South Medford. B. H.

B wins.

Straight Tips—Did Dennis O'Hara, the centreville, New York baseball player of last year play with Fall River or Lexington in the New England League? J. J. BENTON, Fall River.

Straight Tips—I am considerably interested in your column, but I'm the boss of amateurs and I'll be darned if I do not answer every old question again, pronto. Jack L. Sullivan over the top in seven rounds. Tim Hurst was knocked out, confirmed and certified by Referee Siler, Chicago, in seven rounds by a 10-count. Ted Sullivan was knocked out by Jack Dempsey in 1884 and not by Jeffries. Put a Yale lock on your ears, Sullivan, and keep them on the box. Yours for the P. S.—For Old Gloves sake please print this or I'll be angry. Guess you know our feelin' in the matter, old sport. Shake.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON IS OUT OF THE GAME

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 14.—Christy Mathewson, the star twirler of the New York Nationals, is out of the game, indefinitely.

He is suffering here from an attack of diziness, and there does not seem to be any cure for it.

The chances of Mathewson's working in any of the games against the Pirates was knocked on the head, when the doctor called to look the big fellow over, said he was suffering from dizziness and was walking the thing worse by worrying over his inability to get into the game.

PEG IS WINNER OF SONDER BOAT RACE

MARION, July 14—The second Corinthian race of the Riggian Yacht Club was sailed under the adverse conditions. The boats had a squall and later a drifting match with the wind from different quarters. Most of the fifteen-foot cats withdrew after the first windward leg had which could not be overcome. The Peg led the Sonder around the triangular race course, and the Helen just managed to beat the Bandit. The Peg Scrub won from the Polly on the last leg.

HEINE PIETZ IS AFTER UMP'S JOB

CINCINNATI, July 14.—Heine Pietz is an applicant for a position as National League umpire. When President Pulliam was living he told Heine that there would always be a place for him on the umpire staff at any time that he was ready to go to work for the league. President Lynch would simply be carrying out the intentions of his predecessor if he should appoint Pietz to a place on the staff.

AMATEUR BASEBALL MANAGERS, ATTENTION

The easiest way for you to get a reputation for your team is to have the scores of your games appear in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

All true lovers of clean sport read the AMERICAN. Either bring games in person to the AMERICAN office, 80-82 Summer street, or telephone Main 5180. * All games received before 10 o'clock at night will appear in Sunday's Great Sporting Section.

RUSH WORK AT THE SOUTH END GROUNDS

Work on the new bleachers at the South End grounds is moving along rapidly. It is expected the work will be completed the first of the month, just before the team arrives home from its Western trip. The seating capacity of the added home side will be increased to 2,500 and the first base to 3,100, making the seating capacity of the grounds just 15,000.

The rules to support the new stands are made of concrete and have already been laid. Automobiles will be built at Columbus avenue and the railroad tracks, and 2,000 feet of lumber will be used. The fence bordering on the Bird will be five feet high, and there will be more room between seats than before.

WANT SATURDAY GAME.

Owing to cancelation the strong Cambridge A. A. is without a game for Saturday, July 16, and would like to book this date with some strong amateur or semi-professional team away from home. Address Cornelius J. Lane, No. 34 Berkshire street, or telephone Cambridge 22403 between 8 and 9 p. m.

TENNIS CRACKS TO PLAY HERE

Most of the prominent players in this country will compete in the twenty-first annual lawn tennis tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club of this city, to be held from July 18 to 23. The eastern doubles championship tournament will be held simultaneously. In the Longwood tournament the fifth Longwood cup is offered by the club for the third year.

William A. Larned, national champion, has two legs on the cup and will defend it against the winner of this tournament. A third win would give him permanent possession of the cup.

Among the entries are former national champion Beals C. Wright, M. E. McLoughlin of the international team last year; N. W. Niles, Massachusetts champion; W. F. Johnson, Intercollegiate champion; R. L. Little, G. F. Touchard, C. R. Gardner, R. D. Palmer and F. C. Inman of New York; R. C. Seaver and F. J. Sullivan of Boston.

YANKEE SPRINTER TO RACE TITLE HOLDER

C. P. Hyslop, the Westmocket, R. I. sprinter, who has been running professionally in England and South Africa for more than a year, has been matched for a race of 100 yards with J. Donaldson of Australia, present special champion of the world, to take place at Pontypridd, Eng., August 1.

HERZOG WANTED TO BE CAPTAIN

Third Baseman Charley Herzog, now under suspension on the charge of insubordination, did not attempt to supplant Fred Lake as manager of the Boston National Club. This story grew out of Herzog's application made some weeks ago to President Dovey for the captaincy of the club.

At that time there was some talk of a trade with the Cincinnati club, involving the transfer of Captain Bill Sweeney. President Dovey told Herzog he was perfectly willing for him to be appointed, but that he would have to see Lake, in whom the power of appointment vested.

EX-AMHERST PITCHER LOANED TO TORONTO

Lawrence McClure, the ex-Amherst pitcher, who joined the New York Highlanders after the close of the college season has been loaned to Joe Kelley for the Toronto team by Manager Stallings. Stallings thinks that McClure will be a great pitcher with a little more seasoning and that a little experience in the Eastern League is just what the youngster needs.

SHERIFF PUTS BAN ON FIGHT

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—Emphatically declaring that he would permit nothing to take place in Jefferson parish that would tend to injure the cause of New Orleans in securing the Panama exposition, Sheriff L. A. Marero put a quietus for all time on the plans of the fight promoters to pull off on Labor Day a thirty or forty-round prize fight between Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight of the world, and Battling Nelson, former champion, at the West Side A. A.

Promoters of the fight had made preliminary plans and had arranged to remodel the arena so as to seat many thousand more people, making it a great Labor Day bout. Hearing of the project, directors of the Panama exposition company were indignant, arguing that if San Francisco could not allow the great Johnson-Jeffries fight to take place there because of the exposition crowds, how much less could New Orleans afford to pull off a Nelson-Wolgast fight.

PHILLIES SIGN TWIRLER.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 14.—Monte Cross, manager of the Scranton New York State League team, announced to-day that Chalmers, the league's star pitcher, has been signed and will report to the Philadelphia National League club at the end of the season.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S DOUBLE

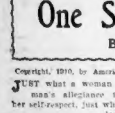
One Standard of Morality

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner.

JUST what a woman may overlook in a man's allegiance to her and retain her self-respect, just what a man may overlook in a woman's allegiance to him without losing his dignity, are questions which cause much heartburn and sorrow in the world.

No one is a greater advocate of one standard of conduct for married men and women than the writer of these words. I believe in setting standards and striving toward them; but I believe, too, in using common sense and looking facts fully in the face as we journey upward.



ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

We cannot yet expect all men to live by all the rules which govern the lives of good women.

We cannot expect a freshman at college to obtain his graduation papers the first year.

We cannot expect men, who have only in the last century begun to be ashamed of the license which the world and society have always given them, to walk as wisely and prudent a pathway as woman has been taught to walk.

New and Novel Idea.

It is still a new and novel idea to man that he possesses a will equal to his passions and appetites, and that an exercise of this will is expected to and will help take his place among the better order of human beings in the march of progress.

One hundred years ago men considered occasional drunkenness no disgrace.

One hundred years ago the favorites of kings ruled the courts of the world. Caresses and prime ministers bowed to them and queens were obliged to cater to them.

Today kings hide their amours and men of all stations are ashamed of drunkenness.

That shows progress in the masculine race. We must not expect the progress to be too rapid. All evolution is slow.

Man is still evolving from the animal to the higher human order. For a long period of time he believed woman to be an inferior creature, without temperament and without morality. She was simply the mother of his species, and she was made to do his will.

He laughed at her idea of mutual loyalty, for he believed woman had neither desire or control, and any weakness on her part was an indication of utter depravity, while continual digressions on his part were only evidences of his larger needs and rights. All men believed this a century or two ago.

The Race Has Advanced

Many men argue in the same manner today. But slowly and surely a different ideal of noble manhood, a different understanding of complete womanhood, is gaining ground.

There was an era when polygamy was universal and respected, if we believe the Old Testament in literal history.

Today all advanced races are fighting against polygamy.

That men conceal and hide polygamous conditions in their lives is an evidence of the progress of the human race since Bible days.

Education and science are working to make a higher creature of man than he has ever been. In place of wooden sentiment facts are forced upon him. Solomon learned by sad experience that it was not wise for a man to give his strength to woman.

Not long ago I saw a man scarcely forty years of age who had been a paralytic for more than ten years. Wine and women, absolute indulgence in every dissipated impulse, had laid him low in the morning of life.

He had believed in man's inborn rights to "privileges" of action not allowed by nature to woman. He had believed in the necessity of self-indulgence which is taught by so many physicians.

But woman has entered the medical arena, and she is teaching a different philosophy. Correct science is teaching the effect of excesses on men's brain, blood and nerves.

Men who openly maintain the right to excesses of all kinds used to argue that women need only look to the animal kingdom to be convinced of man's greater needs and privileges.

Influence of the Past

It is occurring to some of the better class of men today that man should regard himself as something higher than a beast or a bird. Since he has more brain, greater reasoning powers and a larger outlook in the universe, he ought to realize that he is expected to take a higher stand morally, and set a loftier standard for himself. He respects the animal he is, but knows the angel in him should control.

In time he will come to a full knowledge of the wonderful place he can occupy in the universe if he holds to his ideals. But we must not expect all this unfoldment to come to him at once, and we must not condemn him for not living up to the standards set by the enlightened few.

The influence of the past is still upon him.

The license he has so long termed "masculine privileges" he cannot all at once abandon.

When a woman urges one standard of conduct for both sexes the man points with a laugh at the anaemic or feminine type of masculinity that alone lives up to the ideal and asks: "Do you want me to be like him?" And the woman is silenced.

But it is not the man who has nothing within himself to control who is the woman's ideal. It is the man who feels himself the universe and knows himself to be the divine spirit capable of controlling it. That is the man the future will give the earth.

Today we have the weakly man only, perhaps, living the absolutely orderly life. But we have the strong man struggling toward it.

The Woman Leads Him

If he trips and errs, and is sorry, and makes a new effort, we should not be too bitter in our denunciation. He is like the babe who is taking his first tottering steps, and woman—who for centuries has been taught the necessity and the possibility of self-control—is his wise and gentle mother.

There is a certain foundation for the idea that the woman who is unfaithful is more desperate than the unfaithful man. She violates more laws, and openly defies more conventions of the world than man does by the same act.

Therefore it requires a more reckless condition of mind, or a more explosive and anarchistic nature. The sin is no greater, but the offence against established rules is greater. There is no act of sin.

Yet, no one of us, however liberal, and however universal our standard, could truthfully say we would not feel mortified anguish and despair over the misstep of a daughter of twenty than over the misstep of a son of the same age.

We feel that a man who takes back an erring wife is a nobler being than the wife who takes back an erring husband. Not because God makes a distinction between the two, but because one has decided more customs than the other.

It really indicates a higher development of liberality and broad-mindedness in a man to take such a stand than it requires in a woman.

She has centuries of inherited ideas and an understanding of the world's complacent attitude toward erring men to sustain her, while the man is going against all established customs and cutting a pathway through a tangled forest of prejudice.

We are all groping in the dark, but we are all coming out into the light.

Let us help one another by tolerance, charity and patience.

The Summer Visitor

Hints on How to Be a Model and Appreciative Guest

By Dorothy Dix

PACK these few suggestions about the art of visiting in your muslins and embroidered linen when you start out on your round of country visits, girls.

Don't go anywhere unless you have a specific invitation. Never suggest yourself as a possible guest. Take it for granted that every woman who owns a country home also knows perfectly well whom she wants as guests, and that if she desired your presence she will have no hesitation in making the fact known. Also there is a limit to the capacity of every woman's house and pocketbook, and it is utterly impossible for her to entertain all the friends and acquaintances that she would like to.

Steal the spoons or purloin the table linen, if you are predatory minded, but don't try to rob a woman of her dearest possessions.

The Surprise Visitor.

Never be blind enough to pay a surprise visit. There are no people so unwelcome as those blundering fools who think that they can overjoy a hostess by popping in on her. There are a thousand circumstances that makes the visit that would be welcome at one time unwelcome at another and as you cannot possibly know the situation in any household, it is only fair to give the hostess a chance to head you off with a letter or a telegram if the children are sick or the cook has left, or the house is full of carpenters, or any other domestic contretemps has occurred.

There is no housekeeper that doesn't know the horror of the surprise guest, and none who hasn't wished that she could present a cup of cold poison instead of the cup of tea that the hypocritically offers with a smiling countenance to somebody who is guiltily saying: "Of course I wouldn't stand on ceremony with you, so I just came along without even bothering to write to tell you that I was coming."

When you are invited, go at the time you are asked and don't wear out your welcome on the train that is designated, and leave on the one that is suggested. If you are asked to come on the 4:30 train on Friday it means that your hostess will meet you at that time, and you have no right to make her send in two or three other trains because you have been so indifferent of everybody else's convenience that you have only consulted your own.

The Lingering Guest.

Don't overstay your time. Your hostess has other friends whom she wishes to entertain. Besides nothing is so wearing as some as a lingering guest who never seems to know when to get away. Don't let your visit turn into a visitation, but go while you are pressed to stay.

Don't visit at all if you are on a diet, or have any peculiar fads of eating or drinking that must be observed. If you are obliged to have things cooked a certain way, stay at home where you can pay for the trouble you give. Don't inflict yourself on any hostess who has already to walk on eggs to keep servants in the country.

Help to Make Things Go.

When you visit, do in Rome as the Romans do. Don't throw a wet blanket over the party by putting a taboo on everything that has been arranged for your pleasure. If your hostess has arranged a picnic, don't say you'll stay at home and write letters because you can't abide sitting on the ground, and eating pie that is blended with sandwiches, and getting mosquito bitten. If you go to a place where they are golf fiends, golf though you hate it. If they are bridge players, play bridge though you loathe it. If they are crazy about walking, walk though you have blisters on your feet.

Never forget that the only way that you can pay for your hospitality is by helping make things go. To be bright and cheerful, to enter into everything with enthusiasm and to appear to have a good time, is a debt of honor that you owe your hostess, and nothing excuses you for not paying it. Try to be as little trouble as you can. Conform to the way of the household. If they have breakfast at 8 o'clock, appear promptly at the table with a smiling morning face. In the average household it simply deplores the whole domestic machinery for people not to be on time at meals, it is only in novels that dinners and luncheons are movable feasts that are equally good at 7 o'clock or 8:30, or 1 or 1:30, and the confidences and keep him in his wife. Don't overstay your time, for nothing is so wearisome as a lingering guest who never seems to know when to get away.

Don't flirt with your hostess's husband or brother. Steal the spoons or purloin the table linen, if you are predatory minded, but don't try to rob a woman of the heart that is her dearest possession.

Play Fair and Square.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

OH! Euclid was a poet who would fain have scribbled pieces
About the radiant glory that in ancient times was Greece's.

But when he told his publisher what he proposed to write
The latter said it wouldn't suit the public appetite.
"They're dippy on geometry," said he, "if you'd succeed
You write on comic sections. Uke—just give 'em what they'll read."

So Euclid wrote on planes and arcs and theorems and spheres,
And lo! his books were sold and read for many thousand years.

When Manny Kant got out of school his intellect dwelt much on Adventures such as are described by writers like McCutcheon.

He hankered to spin yarns of knights who sneaked up castle stairs
And pilfered lovely maidens from their savage papas' lairs.

But Manny's editor said "No; they want the 'psych' stuff, Kant,
You'll never make a bit unless you give 'em what they want."

So Manny wrote a book he called a "Critick of Pure Reason,"
Which almost instantly became the volume of the season.

In boyhood Noah Webster hoped that he would live some day
To write a novel that would sell as did Jack Harkaway.

He aimed picture bandits holding up the lonely stage
And have a double massacre on every single page.

But "Nix," said Noah's publisher. "You spend your labors on
The book the public wants just now—one good, big Webster."

So Noah, being easy, took these kind and helpful hints
And wrote a little handbook that's been selling ever since.

Don't Kiss the Baby

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A CLUB called the "World's Health Organization" has been organized by a number of earnest women who have the welfare of humanity at heart. Its object is to stop kissing.

The club claims that much disease is spread by means of the kiss, and no doubt there is much truth in the assertion.

But kissing began before clubs or germs were thought of, and I am afraid that the membership of the club will not increase to any very great extent.

In England there grows a lovely little plant called "germ." It blossoms the year round. There is an old saying which runs, "When germ is out of blossom, kissing's out of fashion."

The Kiss Will Long Flourish

The kiss will live as long as the world, because it is an expression of affection. It will be flourishing like a "green bay tree" long after the "W. H. O." has ceased to exist.

But there is one kind of kissing which should be stopped, and that is the kissing of babies.

An attractive, healthy baby is kissed dozens of times every day of its life. And with every kiss there is danger of infection.

In the mouth of every adult there can always be found the germs of tuberculosis, and in five cases out of ten the incipient germs of diphtheria.

The strong, full grown human being has blood in powerful condition that fights down these germs and keeps them from developing.

But when they are transplanted through the lips of a delicate child they often develop and cause death.

And that is the reason why no one, not even the mother, should kiss a baby on the lips.

Don't Kiss the Baby

It is a great temptation to kiss those soft, pure little lips; but, for the baby's sake, resist that temptation. Don't kiss the baby.

If you must kiss him, kiss the back of his neck or the top of his dear little bald head. The "W. H. O." has a club button on which is printed the club motto—"Don't Kiss Me."

The club would be more likely to succeed if it had the words "Don't kiss the baby; don't give him your disease," printed on a strip of ribbon, which might be pinned across the baby's bib.

The club is wasting time, money and effort in trying to stop kissing in general.

People like to kiss, and they will kiss, though "W. H. O." clubs should spring up like mushrooms.

A Good Kissing Story

Here is a little story from Puck apropos of kissing:

He was eager to kiss her.

And after She heard two voices speaking, and one was the voice of the mother that bore her. "Don't!" it said.

But the other, which was the voice of all her mothers since Eve, said: "Do!"

And the majority rules.

The "W. H. O." would be in the minority, I think. Don't you?

But the babies—oh, that is quite another question, for the babies hate to be kissed.

Don't imagine that the mother will feel hurt if you fail to kiss the baby. On the contrary she will be delighted.

You can't say too much in praise of the wonderful work this club will do if only it can tell her how sweet and cunning it is, and her dear mother heart will drink in every word you say. But let it go at that; praise the baby, but don't kiss it.

Those pure baby lips are sacred, and only the mother has the right to kiss them.

The Wise Mother Refrains

The wise mother does not take advantage of her privilege; she does not kiss her baby.

The next time you are tempted to kiss a baby say to yourself, "I have no right to kiss this baby and put in its tender little mouth the germs which I am strong enough to fight."

Don't bother about the "W. H. O." but just remember: DON'T KISS THE BABY.

Little Boy Blew

THE little toy pistol is covered with rust,
But waiting new victims it lies,
And the little toy cannon is thick with dust
Since it injured our little boy's eyes.
Time was when the little toy pistol was new
And the cannon was passing fair;
Ah! that was when our Little Boy Blew
Kicked them, and left them there.

"Now don't let me see you again," he said
At the end of that day of woise,
When he home came off to the hospital bed
Mong the rest of the injured boys.
And as he lay groaning the doctor strong
Took charge of our Little Boy Blew.
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But his face bears scars not a few.

Awaiting some other Boy Blew they stand
Each day in the same old place,
Terrors they were under the hand
And powder marks on the face.
And they wonder as waiting the long years through
On each Fourth of July, with its blare,
Why they are hated by Little Boy Blew
Since he kicked them and left them there.

Why Women Lie

THE LIE OF THE HEART HUNGRY

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"MR. MORTON! No, I don't see him as often as I did."

—any misunderstanding?"

"Oh, no, only—well, I have been very busy. My work is demanding so much of my time—I have very little left for anything else."

"But I thought you liked him—you often seemed to"—

"O, I did—I do. We are still very good friends, only—I haven't as much time to give him."

The elder woman looked troubled. "I'm sorry. I had hoped you would like him—enough to marry him. I feel that you ought to marry him and have a home of your own."

She smiled. "Oh, no, I have no desire to marry. I have my work."

"But will that always satisfy you? You may think so now—but as you grow older?"

"Oh, yes, my work will always satisfy—always fill my life. And art is a very jealous profession, you know—I could not accomplish so much if I were married."

Accomplishment Not All

"Perhaps not. And yet I feel that you would be happier. Accomplishment is not everything in a woman's life. Sooner or later there comes to every woman that irresistible demand for her man—and her child! I hope with you it will not come when it is too late."

"With me it will probably not come at all. My work will take the place of all that."

The elder woman rose to leave. "Well, my dear, I certainly hope so. Perhaps you are more self-sufficient than most women. But I wouldn't give up John and my baby for all the work and accomplishment in the world!"

"More self-sufficient than most women!" Alone her head dropped to the arm of her chair. "More self-sufficient than most women!" The sobs came unchecked. In all the world was there a woman so little self-sufficient? Did any one ever want love and companionship as much as she wanted them? Was any one ever so lonely and heart-sick?

"I never work!" She almost hated the phrase. And yet she must work on because it was all she had—all she might ever know. And for love pride's sake she would lie about it in the future as she had lied about it in the past. She would say it filled her life—that she wanted nothing more.

No Choice but to Lie

And when any one asked about Mr. Morton—she would lie about that! What else could she do? She could not say that he had grown tired of her, that he never cared! Oh, yes; she must go to lying and pretending! She had no choice. And through sheer loneliness and heart hunger she would go on crying herself to sleep every night.

Marriage—a home—a child! Were those things never to be hers? Other women had them—women far less to give than she. Why, then, were they denied her?

She remembered long ago, a woman one said to her—a woman who had been most successful in her work, but who was both lonely and sad: "One can't be lucky in love and cards both! So I suppose the gods thought that they gave me success they would withhold love." And she had smiled sadly and added: "I would rather have had it the other way—but then one never chooses!"

Was that the reason? Was her fate to be the fate of that woman? Because the gods had given her success was it true that they had withheld love? Then she would pray—every night she would pray that that fate might be taken away from her—gladly would give her love! She would welcome failure—privation—even work! Work with only love to come here. For she had come to know that of all suffering the pain of heart-hunger was the worst!

THE FIRST FISHERMAN

BESIDE a vast and primal sea
A solitary savage he,

Who watched the great tides rise and fall,
And spoke the truth—or not at all!

Along the awful shore he ran
Or paddled in his birch canoe.

A thing primeval, undefiled,
Straightforward as a little child—

Until one morn he made a crab
And caught a mermaid crab!

Then—told the tribe at close of day
A bigger one had got away!

From him have sprung (I own a bias
To ways the cult of real est) all fibbers
All fishermen—and Ananias!

"Her Work!" that was all she had to look forward to all her life.

Diversion for Women

By WINIFRED BLACK

A WOMAN in Newark, New Jersey, goes to the ball game and her neighbors think it's scandalous. The other day she put up a placard on her clothes line.

It reads, "Neighbors, may I go to the ball game?" And in ten minutes after the whole neighborhood is gossiping with the news. One of them read, "Who is going to take care of your children?"

There was another, "Take your kids with you," and another, "Ever hear of a home run?"

Not so bad, not at all so bad, for Newark, New Jersey, was it?

If I were the woman who liked to go to the ball game I would go every afternoon in the week, and give my neighbors the hour of something to talk about.

I wonder what glorious and uplifting work the neighbors are doing while Mrs. Fan has gone to the ball game.

Hanging over the back fence telling each other how terrible she is.

I suppose if she stayed at home and gossiped with them she would be considered the flower of all that was truly feminine and beautiful.

Some of the worst housekeepers, the worst mothers and the most abject failures as wives that I have ever known make it a boast that they never set their feet outside of the house except when they have to.

I have always noticed that a house of that sort is usually equipped with shelter beds and that you can find out anything you want to know about any woman in the neighborhood by asking the woman who never leaves her own home to tell you about it.

I wish more women went to more ball games, and to more polo games, and to more golf links, and to more picnics, and to more trotley rides, and to more everything else that would give them something to commune and fresh to talk of.

Maybe husband would enjoy talking with them a little more if they had something to talk about except the children and the cook and the dressmaker—and the neighbors.

Keep on going to your ball games, Mrs. Fan. Hop say your husband goes with you and that you both have the time of your lives rooting for the home team.

I'd rather have your friendship than that of a half dozen little narrow-minded, inquisitive, vinegar-faced neighbors.

SENSE OF HUMOR.

SPEAKER CANNON'S fight with the insurgents brings out all sorts of good stories in Washington. "Uncle Joe's" capacity for tempering his wrath with humor, even when he is wrathy, prompted one Congressman to remark:

"In every walk of life a sense of humor is a help and a blessing. At the same time even this may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about. This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but the rain of blows only seemed to increase his delight.

"'What are you laughing at?' the sergeant finally asked.

"'Why,' the soldier chuckled, 'I'm the wrong man.'"

"Farewell, Spring"

ROSE of the thorn for thy sunset,
Gift of the dew for each tear.
"Fare thee well," wood birds are singing,
Sweet o' the year.

Pale of the dawn for thy passing
Sign of the wind stealing near,
Lone in the lone bow, you left us,
Sweet of the year.

Say, did ye—white rosebud open,
Only to smile on, dear,
For I found it at morn wet with tear-drops,
Sweet o' the year?

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

A WELL-KNOWN New Yorker, who evinces a keen interest in all that pertains to the history of our country, was desirous recently, while in Boston, of visiting certain localities interesting by reason of their connection with Revolutionary events.

One morning when he was going down in the elevator of the Hub's biggest hotel he said to the man at the wheel:

"I wish to visit the wharf where the tea was thrown overboard."

The elevator engineer looked somewhat mystified.

"You'd better inquire at the office, sir," he said. "I guess that happened before I came here. I've been in Boston only about a year."

Don't neglect to begin reading this remarkable story to-day. It is the book of the year. A complete synopsis of the previous chapters is printed to-day for the benefit of new readers:

SYNOPSIS

HAMILTON FYNES, the only occupant of a special train which arrives in London from Liverpool at midnight, has been murdered. When the London station master calls a physician, the latter points to the dagger, which has entered behind the dead man's left shoulder.

The detectives can find no trace of the murderer. All that they discover is that the murdered man is from America, having arrived at Liverpool on the Lusitania. He is the only passenger allowed to land, and he was put ashore after he showed a letter to the captain of the vessel, which gave him that privilege. He secured the special train at Liverpool by means of another letter. The detectives find a hidden pocket in the coat of the murdered man, but there is nothing in it.

The story tells of how an injured man was picked up fifteen miles from London, on the line of the railroad, by an autoist, and is carried to a physician. He says that he has been on a bicycle accident, and begs the physician a goodly sum for his services.

Miss Pauncefote Morse calls at the Hotel Cecil and asks for Hamilton Fynes, saying that she had a luncheon engagement with him. The hotel clerk tells her of the murder, and later when she is questioned by the detectives and reporters, she says that she knows nothing of the murdered man.

She hears the hotel is a hotbed and succeeds in eluding two cabs in which newspaper men try to follow her, later she goes to Dicky Vanderpole, a fellow American, who is an attache at the American embassy, and tells him what she knows of Hamilton Fynes. This is to the effect that Fynes was a secret messenger for the American Government, and she had carried a message for him on a previous trip. It appears Fynes was killed to secure his papers. The mystery is, who or what government would most profit by them.

When the other passengers on the Lusitania reach London, James B. Coulson, the only man who had associated with Fynes on shipboard, told his story to the reporters and police. He professed to know little of Fynes, and expressed the belief that robbery was the motive.

He telephones to Vanderpole, however. The two meet and Coulson is revealed as another secret agent. He gives Vanderpole the duplicate papers, Vanderpole leaves to a task. On the way to the embassy he is killed.

The Duchess of Dorchham and party, including Miss Morse, come to have contract for the Ottoman Japanese Palace and Vanderpole at dinner. The Prince arrived very late, but Vanderpole, of course, did not guess. They did not know who, and went on to the theatre without learning an fact.

Miss Morse is questioned by Inspector Jacks.

Inspector Jacks Scores

"MADAM," Mr. Jacks said, "I have not come here to gratify any personal curiosity. I have come here in the cause of justice. You should find me a welcome visitor, for both these men who have lost their lives were friends of yours."

"I should be very sorry indeed," Penelope answered, "to stand in the way of justice. No one can have a greater desire than I do that the perpetrator of these deeds will be found and punished. But what I cannot understand is your coming here and reopening the subject with me. I tell you again that I have no possible information to give."

"Pardon me," the Inspector declared, "but, on the other hand, there are certain questions which you can answer me, answer them, I mean not grudgingly and as though in duty bound, answer them intelligently, and with some apprehension of the things which lie behind."

"And what is the thing that lies behind them?" she asked.

"A theory, madam," the Inspector answered, "no more. But in this case, unfortunately, we have not passed the stage of theories. My theory, at the present moment, is that the murderer of these two men was the same person."

"You have no evidence to that effect," she said, suddenly surprised to find that her voice had sunk to a whisper.

"Very little," Mr. Jacks admitted; "but, you see, in the case of theories one must build them brick by brick. Then if, after all, as we reach the end, the foundation was false, well, we must watch them collapse and start afresh."

"Supposing we ignore these generalities," Penelope remarked, "and get on with those questions which you wish to ask me. My aunt as you may have heard, is an invalid, and although she seldom leaves her room, this is one of the afternoons when she sometimes sits here for a short time. I should not care to have her find you."

The Inspector leaned back in his chair. It was a very pleasant drawing-room looking out upon the Park. A little French clock, a masterpiece of workmanship, was tickling gayly upon the mantelpiece. Two toy Pomeranians were half hidden in the great rug. The walls were of light blue, on a very full of color, and the carpet, of some plain material, was of the same shade. The perfume of flowers—the faint sweetness of mimosa and the sicklier fragrance of hyacinths—seemed almost overwhelming, for the fire was warm and the windows closed. By the side of Penelope's chair were a new novel and a couple of illustrated papers, and Mr. Jacks noticed that although a paper knife was lying by their side the leaves of all were uncut.

"These questions," he said, "may seem to you irrelevant, yet please answer them if you can. One question I will put for instance—was he to your knowledge, acquainted with Mr. Richard Vanderpole?"

"I have never heard them speak of one another," Penelope answered, "so I should think it very unlikely."

"You have no knowledge of any common pursuit or interest in life which the two men may have shared?" the Inspector asked. "A hobby, for instance—a collection of postage stamps, china, any common aim of any sort?"

She shook her head.

"I knew little of Mr. Fynes' tastes, Dicky—I mean Mr. Vanderpole—had none at all except an enthusiasm for his profession and a love of polo."

"His profession," the Inspector repeated. "Mr. Vanderpole was always attached to the American Embassy, was he not?"

"I believe so," Penelope answered.

"Mr. Hamilton Fynes," the Inspector continued, "might almost have been said to have followed the same occupation."

How Much Should She Tell.

"Surely not!" Penelope objected. "I always understood that Mr. Fynes was employed in a Government office at Washington—something to do with the Customs, I thought, or forest duties."

Mr. Jacks nodded thoughtfully.

"I am not aware, as yet," he said, "of the precise nature of Mr. Fynes's occupation. I only know that it was in some shape or form government work."

"You know as much about it," she answered, "as I do."

"We have near," the Inspector continued smoothly, "a special man out to Washington to make all inquiries that are possible on the spot, and more especially, to go through the effects of the deceased, in the view to tracing any complications in which he may have been involved in this country."

Penelope opened her lips, but closed them again.

"I am not, however," the Inspector continued, "very sanguine of success. In the case of Mr. Vanderpole, for instance, there could have been nothing of the sort. He was too young, altogether too much of a boy, to have had enemies so bitterly disposed towards him. There is another explanation somewhere. I feel convinced, at the root of the matter."

"You do not believe, then," asked Penelope, "that robbery was the real motive?"

"Yet ordinary robbery," Mr. Jacks answered, "A man who was capable of these two crimes is capable of subtler and greater things, I mean," he explained, "that he would have attempted extorpitance of a far more remunerative character with a prospect of complete success."

"Will you forgive me," she said, "if I ask you to go on with your questions, providing you have not finished with me? Notwithstanding the excellence of your dialogue," she remarked with a frail curl of the lips, "I might find it somewhat difficult to explain your presence if any aunt or any visitors should come in."

At Cross Purposes

"I am sorry, Miss Morse," the inspector said quietly, "to find you so unsympathetic. Had I found you differently disposed, I was going to ask you to put yourself in my place. I was going to ask you to look at these two tragedies from my point of view and from your own at the same time, and was going to ask you whether any possible motive or explanation, or cause, any possible person or cause, which might be benefited by the removal of these two men."

"If you think, Mr. Jacks," Penelope said, "that I am keeping back anything from you, you are very much mistaken. Such sympathy as I have with you I have only with those who are attempting to bring to justice the perpetrators of such unmentionable crimes. What I object to is the circumstances of being associated with your inquiries when I am absolutely unable to help you by the least help, or to supply you with any information which is not equally attainable to you."

"Is that instance?" the Inspector asked. "You are a detective," Penelope said coldly. "You do not need me to point out certain things to you. Mr. Hamilton Fynes was robbed and murdered on an American citizen on his way to London. Mr. Richard Vanderpole is also murdered, after a call upon Mr. James B. Coulson, the only acquaintance whom Mr. Fynes is known to have possessed in this country. Did Mr. Fynes share secrets with Mr. Coulson? If so, did Mr. Coulson pass them on to Mr. Vanderpole, and for that reason did Mr. Vanderpole meet with the same death, at the same hands, as had befallen Mr. Fynes?"

Inspector Jacks moved his head thoughtfully.

"It is admirably put," he assented, "and to continue?"

Letting the Secret Out.

"It is not my place to make suggestions to you," Penelope said. "If you are able to connect Mr. Fynes with the American Government, you arrive at the possibility of these murders having been committed for some political end. I presume you read your newspapers?"

Inspector Jacks smiled, plcked up his hat and stick and, Penelope, with a sigh of relief, moved over to the bell.

"My dear young lady," he said, "you do not understand how important even the point of view of another person is to a man who is struggling to build up a theory. Whether you have helped me as much as you could," he added, looking her in the face, "you only can tell, but you have certainly helped me a little."

The footman had entered. The Inspector turned to follow him. Penelope insisted as she had been standing, the hand which had touched the bell fallen to her side, her eyes fixed upon him with a new light stirring deep in them.

"One moment, Morton," she said. "Will you, Mr. Jacks," she added, "as you are door closed, "what do you mean? What have I have told you? In what can I have helped you?"

The Inspector stood very still for a brief space of time, very still and very silent. His face, which was usually expressionless, was keen, and his eyes fixed upon him with a new light stirring deep in them.

"If you had chosen," he said slowly, "to have become my ally in this matter, you have ranged yourself altogether on the side of the law, my answer would have been ready enough. What you have told me, however, you have told me against your will and not by your choice. You have told me in such a way, too," he added, "that it is impossible for me to count your intention to mislead me. I am forced to conclude that we stand on opposite sides of the way. I shall not trouble you any more, Miss Morse."

He turned to the door. Penelope remained motionless for several moments, listening to his retreating footsteps.

CHAPTER X.

Mr. Coulson Outmatched

MR. JAMES B. COULSON settled down to live what was, to all appearance, a very inoffensive and ordinary life. He rose a little earlier than was customary for an Englishman of business of his own standing, but he made up for this by a somewhat prolonged visit to the barber, a breakfast, which bespoke an unimpaired digestion, and a cigar of more than ordinary length over his newspaper.

GLADYS GWENDOLYN

By HARRY LEWIS

At about 11 o'clock he went down to the City and returned sometimes to luncheon, sometimes at varying hours, never later, however, than 4 or 5 o'clock. From that time until 7 he was generally to be found in the American bar, meeting old friends or making new ones.

On the sixth day of his stay at the hotel, Mr. Coulson summoned the waiter.

Savoy the waiter who looked after the bar smoking-room accosted him as he entered at his usual time, a little after half-past four.

"There's a gentleman here, Mr. Coulson, been asking after you," he announced, "told him that you generally came in about this time. You'll find him sitting over there."

Mr Coulson glanced in the direction indicated. It was Mr. Jacks who awaited him in the cushioned easy chair. For a single moment, perhaps, the lips tightened and the light of battle flashed in his eyes. Then he crossed the room, apparently himself again—an undistinguished, perfectly natural figure.

"It's Mr. Jacks, Isn't it?" he asked, holding out his hand. "I thought I recognized you."

The Inspector rose to his feet.

"I am sorry to trouble you again, Mr. Coulson," he said, "but if you could spare me just a minute or two, I should be very much obliged."

Mr. Coulson laughed pleasantly.

"You can have all you want of me from now till midnight," he declared. "My business doesn't take very long, and I can only see the people I want to see in the middle of the day. After that, I'm a retired fellow, you know, and have heaps of time on my hands. Try one of these," he added, producing a silver case.

The Inspector thanked him and helped himself from the proffered box. "What's yours, Mr. Jacks?"

"Nothing for me," the detective replied. "Not while you very much," the inspector said. "I will take a little Scotch whiskey and soda."

Sparring for Points.

The two men sat down. The corner was a retired one, and there was no one within earshot.

"Now, I'm not making reflections," Mr. Coulson said, sticking his cigar to a corner of his mouth and leaning back in a comfortable attitude, "but it does seem to me that you are some too rapid on this side in clearing up these matters. Why, a little affair of that sort wouldn't take the police twenty minutes in New York. We have a big city, full of alley quarters, full of hiding places, and crook full of criminals, but in our police catch 'em, all the same. There's no one going to commit murder in the streets of New York without being blessed by the Tombs before he's a week older. No offence, Mr. Jacks—I'm not taking you, Mr. Coulson," the inspector answered. "I must admit that there's a great deal of truth in what you say. It is rather a reflection upon us that we have not as yet even made an arrest, but I think you will admit that the circumstances of those murders were exceedingly curious."

Nordica Expected Hamilton.

MRS. GEORGE W. YOUNG, who is more widely known as Mme. Nordica, has opened her artistic bungalow, Oakwood Hall, in Deal Beach, N. Y., where she had hoped to have Charles K. Hamilton drop over from New York in his aeroplane and make her a call. She met Hamilton several weeks ago when she was pursuing his flight to Philadelphia and she invited him to attend her reception. He promised to do so, and Mrs. Young was counting on giving her guests an odd surprise. Oakwood Hall is a dainty place and around the use of many adjectives on the part of guests who wished to express their enthusiasm. It is in the centre of a grass and flower plot of fifteen acres and is a delightful country home. It does not compete in point of expensiveness with the famous McCall home in New Jersey, but in artistic quaintness it is an example of most unrivaled.

Just a Woman's Way

MARGARET ESTHER CRAGIN

ALL women talk discursively; they ramble on from one subject to another, with bounds off from the newest to suffrage discipline to Valenciennes edging; and from a wonderful discussion of the Platonics they soon drift around to the crack in their precious old Worcester bowl.

In your stupid men it is an awful bore, but in our many clever women it is charming; just bird-like flitting over the newest of whims may be done with infinite grace, and sometimes the lord will bring you a pearl that all the deep divers have missed.

The "illustrious surprise" is one of the greatest charms in our laws of custody; and no one single is able more than does the women of quick talent and of facile speech, in her six varieties which will even in their most erratic moments still keep some method in their madness.

Never ask a woman to explain.

If her opinion or her argument be pointless or involved, you shouldn't let her know you think so by asking her what she means. It would tend to still further complication. Just remain patient and some time perhaps, when the subject has passed almost entirely from your mind she will then in a few stray words unconsciously make herself intelligible.

Discussion may be the salt of life to man, but listeners and echoes are the bonbons and cream that no woman can do without.

Who can ever say that he knows a woman? Who can ever predict what she will not say or will not do? She will not be? They are all extremes and contraries.

They will be on the verge of nervous prostration one day and spending their automobile to its utmost limit the next. They will be in hysterics at their dressmaker's at noonday and in ecstacies over bridge at midnight.

The shortness of their memories is very convenient.

Women are all uncommonly fond of celebrities—oh, yes, we buy their photographs and steal their characters with the greatest ardor imaginable. We are always shrewing flowers before them, and throwing stones after them, with the most affectionate energy possible. But it is only while they are in range of our eyesight. If they retire, or pause, or only get sick for a little, we are done with them.

The statesman may have overworked his brain in our service; the painter may have paralyzed the author may have gone to his reward; and the actress may have married or be dying—it is all the same; they have disappeared, and we think no more of them.

It has been said that women have no impersonal sympathy; that they are only tender just for themselves and their belongings, as digressers and hearers are, whereas men can be moved by a thousand things—their imaginations, their affections, their chivalries, their follies, their intelligence and their perception.

It is ignoble to so satirize women. They are all tenderness.

Their theories and their philosophies are merged in sweetness.

One can never really find out the value of woman's words. It may be speech was given them to conceal their thoughts, for it is true that they sometimes use it for that end.

But there is one universal language of theirs which is one of the many superiorities which femininity enjoys alone—the language of baleland. No confusion reigns there, and though scattered all over the world, motherhood and babyhood are a one great nation.

Men born on different banks of a river or opposite sides of a plain, their speech mutually unintelligible to each other, stand in a public place amidst a scene of unknown tongues spoken by their neighbors.

But place a mother from Lalgnder in a car with a Chinese baby, or let one of Jo land meet one of Peru, and, lo! you behold them intelligible at once, also to compress by a freemasonry to which the widest spread of your brotherhood of mankind is as nothing.

Many Autumn Society Weddings

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT

Dates for Autumn weddings are already being announced, and are creating no end of talk. Indeed, quite the largest and most important announcement is that the marriage of Miss Rossiah Fish, a daughter of Hamilton Fish of New York and Washington, and John Cutler of Brookline is to take place on October 9. The ceremony is to be at Garrison, N. Y., and a wedding reception is to be given by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish at the historic old Fish residence at Garrison. Mrs. Fish, the mother, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, died several years ago. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish has since been the hostess at the several entertainments for the Fish Summer in honor of Miss Fish and her fiance.

One might think from looking over the lists of fashionables sailing each week that they were most all have departed for the other side by this time, but there are still more to follow, and many of them. Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer Thayer, who before her marriage was Miss Sloane, is planning to sail shortly to spend the remainder of the season abroad. Mrs. Thayer is one of Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, who is now at her Summer home at Murdock Rock. Mrs. Thayer is going over to visit the young Thayers at Newport. Mrs. Sargent's daughters, Miss Julia and Mary, are developing into most attractive young ladies. Their mother, Julia Matthews Porter, and the family resides abroad most of the time.

Mrs. Oscar Iasigi, who has been entertaining lavishly this Summer at her handsome estate in Lenox, is now the guest of friends on the North Shore, having come here with her daughters, Mrs. Arthur E. Grandin and Miss Nora Iasigi.

Among the more recent additions to the select little colony of Bostonians at Newport are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince, who are at the Merritt cottage, and Mr. and Mrs. Reyard Thayer, who are at Villa Rosa.

The Misses Heid arrived in Lenox yesterday and opened their cottage on Court Hill for the Summer.

Miss Leonora Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ives Cobb, has announced that her marriage to Robert Amory, Jr., will take place in September, probably about the middle of the month. Among Miss Cobb's attendants will be Miss Mary Copley Amory and Miss Ruth Amory, sisters of the fiance. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb are spending a month at their country place, Rockdale Farm, Brewster, N. Y.

Miss Dorice Mommeson Bowen, the singer, is spending the Summer at Egypt

Her place a mother from Lalgnder in a car with a Chinese baby, or let one of Jo land meet one of Peru, and, lo! you behold them intelligible at once, also to compress by a freemasonry to which the widest spread of your brotherhood of mankind is as nothing.

George B. Dorr of Commonwealth avenue who is at Bar Harbor for the Summer, it is mentioned, will be a competitor at the Mt. Desert flower show which is to be held in the building of arts on August, 13 and 14.

Miss Alice Sargent is considered one of the most expert yachtswomen on the North Shore, will sail her own sloop boat again this season in the trial for boats which will meet the sloop boats to be sent over to race for the Taft cup in August. Miss Sargent is one of Mrs. Charles Sargent and Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, at their Summer home at Murdock Rock. Last year Miss Sargent won a prize in the Manchester regatta.

2 TOWNS CLAIM SAME CHURCH

It will take the Supreme Court to determine whether South Harwich or South Chatham is to own a church.

Judge Richardson was asked by Nathaniel and Mary E. Small of South Harwich to make permanent an injunction obtained against Alonzo F. Cahoon and others of South Chatham, who constitute the Bethel Society, from removing or in any way disturbing the present location of the edifice.

The judge announced that he would report the case to the full bench of the Supreme Court.

Not only ownership, but church tenets are involved, as the Smalls strenuously object to the removal because they claim that the Bethel Society is far less liberal in belief than they are.

A crowning indignity appears to be the inclusion of the pulpit in the list of strayed canine, for the Smalls say that result has been added to injury by replacing the original handy pulpit by a dubious affair, which would not stand up after use by a really vigorous pastor.

RAN AWAY TO DODGE SCHOOL

Go home, Sammy Berkman, and don't cause your mother to suffer any longer. She is prostrated over your continued absence. You will be forgiven and welcomed with open arms.

Sammy Berkman is the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Berkman of No. 25 Wales street, Dorchester, and left home early last Monday morning. He spoke of attending a picnic that day at one of the islands down the harbor, and was seen on the boat when it made the return trip.

Young Berkman is five feet one inch in height, weighs 120 pounds, and has dark brown hair and blue eyes. When he left home he wore a brown suit of clothes, black stockings and lace shoes. He is a graduate of the Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester, and attends the Boston English High School.

Prior to vacation he failed to pass several examinations at the school, which aggravated his father, who threatened to send him to a Summer school. This preyed upon his mind, his sister says, and is undoubtedly responsible for his absence.

Timothy H. McCarty, nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCarty of No. 189 West Ninth street, South Boston, was saved from drowning in Dorchester Bay, off the Strandway by Representative William P. Hickey, who lost his gold watch in the effort. Hickey plunged into the water and neared toward the boy, catching him by the left leg as he was going down to his death. Hickey brought the boy ashore, carried him to the Ware Cottage on East Sixth street, where he was resuscitated. Then he discovered that the watch had dropped from his pocket while in the water.

MEN TO SWIM IN RACE WITH DUCKS

NEW YORK, July 14.—A man may run a race against a horse or an ostrich, fly against a bird, dive against a fish, but how many have tried to swim against a duck?

The Jamaica Bay Yacht Club believes it would be an interesting contest, so it has arranged to have any one who can swim, run or fly, the ducks will be liberated, and the human entrants will dive from a float in a pond. Those who win the ducks will get medals as well as the ducks.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It is expert observation that the market had been sold to a standstill. If the bears persevere for yet a while there may be a bear instead of a bull panic on Saturday. The technical position has been involuntarily set for a massive manipulation of the shorts. From St. Paul to Steel common the short interest is almost incalculable. In the three days' liquidation there was material evidence of this. Certain stocks that ordinarily move in eighths jumped a point or a point on purchases of hundred share lots.

If the exports of the United States continue to show increases, both London and Paris will ship gold freely to this country during the fall. Financial and banking advices received in the Street are to this effect. Arrivals of foreign gold at our ports will decrease as the exports enlarge. The bulk of current funds encountered in these gold engagements as tending to lower rates. Foreigners as a rule are not threatened in the Fall due to the demand for the movement of the crops. This is the time of year, however, when people begin to worry over the funds necessary to move the crops. As a rule the banks make their arrangements in plenty of time to prevent serious consequences.

There is not the least sign of trepidation in State Street regarding the possibility of a war with Germany or any other power and the bears who have tried to work up a scare have had their labor for their pains. Foreigners as a rule are not anxious to buy our stocks and bonds than they are to go to war with us, and reports from the best sources over the ocean are to the effect that the people there prize the best construction possible on the low rate law, the international bankers expect favorable orders for our securities during the Summer.

That there must be further liquidation on the part of the interior is the opinion prevalent in the financial district, because the need of ready cash within two or three months will be most pronounced. The rolling of grain now in the hands of the farmers promises to be one of the features of the near future, due to the present high price. It is said that liquidation on the part of the interior has been comparatively small. This applies mostly to real estate and grain.

STOCKS JUMP ABOUT A POINT

NEW YORK, July 14.—An average advance of a point was made by standard railroad and industrial shares in Wall Street. Trading was fairly active during the early part of the session, with Union Pacific, Steel, Reading and Amalgamated Copper the speculative favorites.

Pennsylvania strike talk failed to weaken the stock of the company in the early trading. It declined about a half point at the opening, but before the end of the first half hour all the losses had been recovered. Evidence came to hand to-day that strong investment and speculative interests have been accumulating stocks for the past ten days, including both the Standard Oil and Morgan-Gould properties. Standard Oil speculation has been against the market in the recent past, but it is now believed that the interests have covered a large short interest and have taken on liberal lines of long stocks.

Morgan brokers and their following have been quiet operators, but their purchases have absorbed large blocks of Steel, Union Pacific and Union trunk line issues.

American shares were higher in London. Mining shares were strong on the curb, with fractional advances.

Here Is Mr. Loeb

They Say He Is to Be Next Governor of New York State. What Do YOU Think About Him? The Next Governor of New York State Certainly Has Some Big Opportunities Before Him.

William Loeb, Jr., Collector of the Port of New York, slated as the Republican candidate for Governor of the State of New York

(This photograph is reproduced by courtesy of the Campbell Photographic Art Gallery, Waldorf-Astoria, New York City)

"They say" that Mr. Loeb, once secretary to President Roosevelt, and now Collector of the Port of New York, is to be selected by the Republicans as their candidate for Governor of New York State.

In a recent interview given by W. R. Hearst to the New York World appeared the following question and answer:

QUESTION—Now, Mr. Hearst, we have discussed possible Democratic candidates; who do you think are possible Republican candidates?

ANSWER—I think that Republicans, too, must nominate some strong young man if they are to have a chance of success in New York State. They must nominate a man with a personal record better than his party's record or they will go down to overwhelming defeat. Ex-Secretary Loeb is the kind of man whom the Republicans must nominate. I do not say that Mr. Loeb is the only good man, the only worthy man, the only available man in the Republican organization; I merely say that he is the KIND of a man with whom as a candidate the Republicans would have a chance to win.

This interview with Mr. Hearst was published in the Sunday World on June 26. Tuesday's newspapers carried the information that Mr. Loeb had paid a visit to President Taft at Beverly and to ex-President Roosevelt and that both of these gentlemen favor his nomination by the Republicans for Governor of the State of New York.

The man nominated by the Republicans this year in New York State will have a very good chance of being Governor of the greatest State in the greatest republic in the world, and a chance to render important service to the community. He will also have a chance to get such a beating as very few Republican candidates have got in the history of this republic.

It all depends on the man nominated by the Republicans, the man nominated by the Democrats—and upon a few other things, SUCH AS THE SENTIMENTS AND ACTIONS OF INDEPENDENT VOTERS.

There is no doubt that Mr. Loeb, of whom we present here the latest and the most striking photograph, is the prominent candidate of the hour. This photograph gives you a chance to study his face and to make up your mind what YOU AS AN INDIVIDUAL VOTER think about him.

Remember that this man is just as important to the voter in Illinois, California, Massachusetts or Texas as to the voter in New York State, for the man elected Governor of New York State this Fall is very apt to come along asking for your votes for a bigger office in two or six years from now.

We print this photograph, which enables the intelligent man to study Loeb's character, and we know that the voter who thinks can learn more from THE PICTURE OF A MAN'S FACE than from tens of

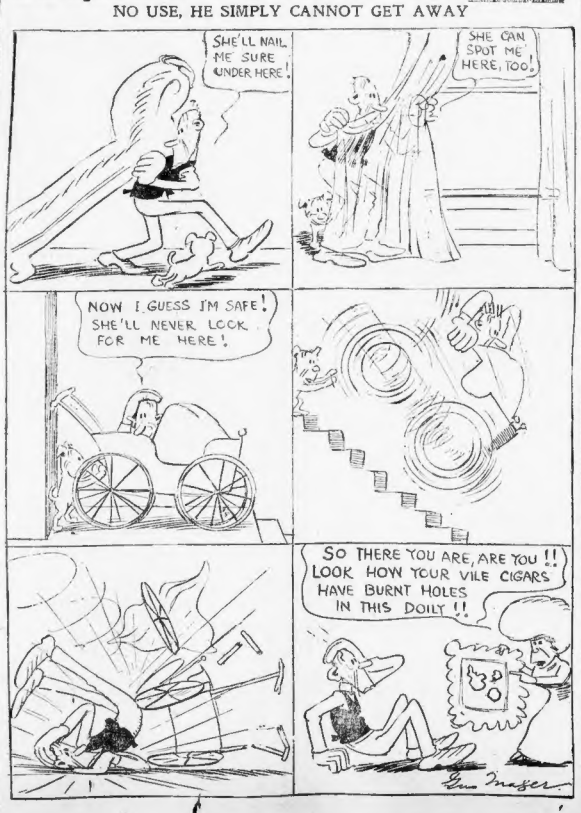
NO USE, HE SIMPLY CANNOT GET AWAY



Our Busy Mayor Gets Lots of Criticism

A Little Praise Now and Then Would Be Relished by Him—Here Are Three Chances to Encourage Him in Good Deeds

Three steps have been taken by Mayor Fitzgerald for which he deserves special commendation.

He has used resources of the city to bring all the comfort possible into the home-surroundings of the people in the congested districts during the hot weather.

He has promised the public that rowdies shall be banished from the Common and the public parks.

He has pointed out the lack of accommodations at the State bathhouse at Revere and has properly criticised the Metropolitan Park Commission for allowing it to exist.

This newspaper believes that it is proper to praise public officials when they show an active and intelligent interest in the public welfare.

Having criticised the Mayor very freely in the past for acts which were not considered wise, expedient or necessary, it is only just and fair that the American should give proper recognition and encouragement of his good deeds.

It was not good economy to shut off the fountains in the tenement house districts. It resulted in the saving of a little money, of course, but human lives and not expenses are the things to be reckoned in hot weather periods, such as this one through which we have been sweltering.

It was a kindly and thoughtful act to order the fire companies to cool the hot streets during the afternoon and evening. It was praiseworthy and humanitarian action on the Mayor's part.

Conditions in certain sections of Boston Common have for some time been unspeakable. Not only has it been unsafe for women to walk alone through the Common in the evening, but they have been in danger even when escorted by their husbands, brothers or male friends.

Why the police have not acted to wipe out these gangs of moral lepers is surprising to the general public. That the Mayor means business and intends to wipe them out, even if compelled to go to the expense of special park police to do so, is welcome news. He will receive the thanks of every decent citizen of Boston.

So far as the State bathhouse at Revere is concerned, it is a short-sighted policy that deprives thousands of people from bathing.

It is to be hoped that the Mayor will keep up this fight until the metropolitan board wakes up and increases the facilities for bathing.

To keep long lines of men, women and children standing in line in the hot sun for hours at a time presents a moving picture of stupid management and a condition of things that is harmful. And the idea of the State bathhouse is to be beneficial.

In this movement Mayor Fitzgerald will be backed by the entire public sentiment of Suffolk County.

Here Is Mr. Loeb

thousands of written words that he says about himself or that others say about him.

A man can change his words and opinions to suit the hour, BUT HE CAN'T CHANGE HIS FACE. The face is the man. Here is Loeb. What do you think of him?

You see in this face, to begin with, a well-balanced, cautious, conservative—perhaps hesitating—mentality. This is not the man who strikes first and thinks afterward about the result of the blow. It is a man who thinks many times before he strikes at all—AND PERHAPS DOESN'T STRIKE AT ALL.

His success thus far has been due to the fact that he has gone along on an even keel—letting others talk about themselves and wallow in the limelight—no effort to get in the limelight on his part.

There are great opportunities for the next Governor of the State of New York—FOR EVERY GOVERNOR OF EVERY GREAT STATE IN THE AMERICAN UNION.

The Governor of New York has, technically and theoretically—and if his individuality be strong enough he has ACTUALLY—all of the absolute powers conferred upon the Governor in the old days before the Revolution.

He can remove officials, use the militia to supplement the police, control the police absolutely if he chooses.

In short, he can use a very great power to serve and protect the voters that elect him or he can use the same power to serve and protect the corporations that usually nominate him, that usually bring about or prevent his preferment.

As a voter you should study this photograph of Mr. Loeb and decide for yourself whether he is the sort of man that would work for the voter whom he never saw or for the big corporation man who will make it his special business to see him.

Mr. Hearst in his interview stated that Mr. Loeb is THE KIND of man "with whom as a candidate the Republicans would have a chance to win." Just exactly what he meant by this Mr. Hearst may explain more fully on his approaching return from Europe.

Meanwhile you, the voter, can make up your mind whether or not you think that Mr. Loeb is THE KIND of man you would select for Governor of the State and for a bigger office later.

Just now it is announced that Mr. Loeb is going to the Rocky Mountains to shoot bears. Ordinarily this would seem a rather farcical and trivial announcement concerning a public man. When you have "bears" in Wall street pulling the country's values to pieces, it seems rather useless for a man of power to go hunting poor, mangy, plantigrade scramblers on the rocky hills.

But probably Mr. Loeb wants to do the classical, accepted thing. And the classical thing changes in our country.

Thomas Jefferson, you know, when he ceased to be President, went off and taught in a college.

Grover Cleveland did the same when his presidential work was ended.

Theodore Roosevelt, when HIS White House work was over, went off shooting lions and similar African vermin.

So Loeb does the best he can, and HE goes off shooting American animals.

But that fact needn't prejudice you against him—it isn't likely that he will shoot much of anything.

His face is more like that of a man acquainted with the three "R's" than with the size and nature of bullets.

However, whatever he may be, whatever he may do, here is Mr. Loeb. Look at him, study him, and casually ask yourself just how it happens that among eighty millions of Americans, the product of many thousands of public schools, this is the face of the individual that the President of the United States and other good judges select as a likely candidate for Governor of the greatest State in the Union.
